PIRACIES ON CHINA COAST ARE VICIOUS

The message stated that after taking control of the Kwanchi the pirates dismantled the wireless. Afterward for forty-eight hours they cruised off the coast of Chekiang province while plundering the vessel. Entering an isolated bay south of Haimen last night, the pirates disembarked with their plunder after warning the officers not to attempt to follow them.

PASSENGERS WOUNDED
The Kwanchi reported that while the bandits fired pistols indiscriminately, only one passenger was wounded.

After the robbers' departure the ship proceeded to Haimen, repaired the disabled wireless and reported the affair to Shanghai. The piracy is considered doubly daring as it was made within the steamer lanes.

MOONEY CASE IS CREATING MUCH DOUBT

City Treasurer Duncan Matheson, who, as captain of detectives, conducted the bombing investigation after the tragedy of July 22, 1918, said he now believed Mooney innocent, but added that he placed little credence in the Lewis Smith reports. "The story is preposterous, and lacks even common information as to the circumstances and details of the bombing," he said. "I do not believe the confession was ever made."

SEEKING WITNESS
BELLAIRE, Ohio, Nov. 9.—With three persons corroborating the six-year-old deathbed confession of Lewis Smith that he was responsible for the San Francisco "parade day" bomb outrage of 1916, when ten persons met death, interest in the case tonight centres in the whereabouts of Frank C. Stevens, an inmate of the National Military Home at Dayton, Ohio, and one of those who claim to have heard the deathbed statement.

Stevens left Bellaire today, accompanied by a man who identified himself as a "Cincinnati newspaperman."

Internationalism. He emphasized that Japanese newspapers have been friendly to the Institute, although such questions as the Manchurian problem have come up.

"International conferences are hard to hold in Japan," Dr. Nitobe said, "and for the first time we have tried here a big international conference."

The general reputation of the people of Japan has been more than we dreamed of. Scarcely any Japanese paper has said anything disrespectful or derogatory. There is a decided tendency among our people to progress in international thinking, even for the die-hard there is no escaping internationalism. This tendency has been greatly aided by this conference and we have therefore good reason to thank the members of the conference for what they have done for our country."

Five aldermen, four school trustees and one police commissioner are to be chosen by the electors next month, and Mr. Shanks is the first candidate this year to enter the field for any of these civic posts.

Civic officers whose terms expire this year, making them eligible for re-election include Mayor Herbert Anscomb, Aldermen Robert A. C. Dewar, John A. Worthington, William Marchant, John L. Mara and John Harvey, School Trustees John Peden, J. L. Beckwith, A. C. Pike and J. S. McMillan and Police Commissioner William White.

The majority of the retiring officers, it is expected, will seek re-election to their respective positions in December. Nomination day has been set for Thursday, December 5, with voting a week later.

Mr. Frank Hunter, city clerk, has been named returning officer for the election.

Most Unique Event Ever Held in Ages Of British Empire

posed by the Prince of Wales. The toast to the Royal Family was submitted by Earl Jellicoe, president of the British Legion.

That to the guests was proposed by the Prince of Wales. Lieutenant-Commander Harold Aulen, V.C., of the "Q" ship force, replied on behalf of the Senior Service; Sgt. Charles Spackman for the Army V.C.'s; Lieut.-Col. W. A. Bishop, Canadian ace, for the Royal Air Force, and Lieut.-Col. G. R. Pearkes, of Victoria and Kingston, for the V.C.'s from overseas.

IMPRESSIVE MOMENT
There was an impressive moment when the Prince proposed the health of the King. When he rose there was loud and prolonged cheering, and then when the band played the National Anthem the guests sang with deep and reverent emotion. Their sturdy voices filled the Royal Gaiety.

Nothing was more outstanding than the extraordinary variety of life presented by the guests. On one side of the table was a Toronto V.C., on the other a V.C. from Leeds. Across the table was a Jewish V.C. from Manchester. Yet not one of them talked of war. On this occasion they were determined to enjoy themselves.

The most remarkable feature of the gathering was the reluctance of V.C.'s to talk about the war. They discussed football and London, but the only remark I heard about the war was when a V.C. asked me if I had read "All Quiet on the Western Front."

ENTHUSIASM FOR PRINCE
Enthusiasm for the Prince of Wales was most marked. When the band played "God Bless the Prince of Wales" all joined in and cheered so long that it was difficult to secure silence for the speeches.

Noticeable, too, was the friendliness of the waiters, who at banquets are accustomed to preserve a dignified frigidity. On this occasion they felt such respect for the V.C.'s that they were lavish in their attention.

The democratic spirit of the gathering was most emphasized by the fact that rank did not count at the table. Unemployed sat next to men of eminence; manual workers laughed with the aristocracy; responsible positions in civil life. There was no distinction of any kind.

It was strange to hear "Madelonette" from Antwerp and other popular army songs sung in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords and listen to such boisterous cheering, but it was typical of a unique gathering.

When dinner was finished there was a rush to get the Prince to sign autographs on the back of the menu and a long time the Prince, with a smile, answered requests of a long queue of V.C.'s, who warmly appreciated his autograph.

Colonel Bishop and Colonel Peakes, both Canadian, spoke, and Colonel Bishop aroused much laughter by saying, towards the end of his speech, that "like Lady Godiva, I am now coming to my knees."

This remark amused the Prince, who said it was new on him.

THE PRINCE SPEAKS
Addressing his guests, the Prince of Wales said: "You who have come from all parts of the Empire, men of all ranks and branches of service, I give you a most hearty welcome on behalf of the British Legion."

Tonight I speak with considerable embarrassment because it is not our national custom to tell men how brave they are.

"I am told that your feats of arms were accomplished in the most gallant manner. On the other hand, the simple words of your citation are most comforting. Tonight, I speak of the most enviable order of the Victoria Cross, the most democratic and most exclusive of all orders of chivalry."

"You are men who, having done your job, shut up like the proverbial oyster. War may never again come into your lives. This remark was greeted with loud cheering."

The Prince then expressed his honor for the memory of those V.C.'s who died in battle.

He sent a message of thanks and good wishes for the V.C.'s.

LT-GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE
Hon R. Randolph Bruce was not unmindful of the Victoria Cross men from British Columbia and their royal host, the Prince of Wales, last evening.

His Honor sent the following message to His Royal Highness on the occasion of the dinner given by him to the Victoria Cross men from over the Empire, given in London:

"May it please your Royal Highness to accept, boys and girls from the veterans and people of British Columbia. Our thoughts are with you, Sir, and your gallant guests tonight."
(Sgd.) "RANDOLPH BRUCE,
Lieutenant-Governor."

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON INSTALLED

force displays. There were also representatives of the various companies of guilds and public societies. Among the contrasts between modern and ancient transport was the late King Edward's first automobile.

GUILDHALL BANQUET
Hundreds of distinguished persons, including the ambassadors and ministers of many nations, made the famous old Guildhall echo with cheers tonight at the annual Lord Mayor's banquet when Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald said: "The prospect in front of us tonight, my Lord Mayor, is the prospect of established peace."

He had turned dramatically to Sir William Waterlow, the chief executive of the city in the midst of his speech on world affairs. At another point the Premier said: "My only regret is that the American ambassador is not here tonight." General Charles G. Dawes was at sea on his way back to London.

DISCUSSED CONVERSATIONS
Mr. MacDonald went on to discuss his recent conversations with General Dawes and President Hoover, paving the way for the naval disarmament conference to be held here in January.

"General Dawes and I tried to remove the difficulties preventing an agreement between America and ourselves, but between other nations," he said. "Both peoples knew perfectly well that until America and ourselves had removed our difficulties, it was useless trying to get other nations to remove similar ones. I went over to see President Hoover because I believed that negotiations in delicate subjects can be conducted through personal contact. Only by personal contact can you deliver the spirit as well as the letter of the negotiations."

Mr. J. Riordan, Bank President, Commits Suicide

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Mr. James J. Riordan, president of the County Trust Company, and close friend and associate of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, committed suicide by shooting yesterday afternoon, but the news was withheld until today.

The reason for the act was said by police to be heavy losses in the stock market. Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, said the news was withheld to prevent a possible run on the bank. He declared he had no difficulty in reaching the bank was solvent. The State bank examiner could not be reached for a statement. The city of New York has $3,000,000 on deposit in the bank. A statement issued by the board of directors of the County Trust Company said that the trust company was in a "wholly liquid condition," and that the suicide of Mr. Riordan was "due solely to the state of his health."

OVER $20,000 COLLECTED IN AID OF BLIND

Campaign Committee
Thanks Those Who Have Given Their Time During Past Week's Campaign

HEADQUARTERS OPEN NEXT WEEK

The sum of $20,246 has been received at the headquarters of the Campaign for the Blind, situated at 1203 Broad Street, as Victoria's contribution in a six days' drive for funds towards building an institute in Vancouver for the sightless of British Columbia.

This sum is exclusive of three separate donations of $1,000 each, which are expected to be received by the campaign committee early next week. The headquarters will remain open during the whole of next week and it is hoped that a number of people will phone the offices, No. 568 or No. 571, to signify their willingness to act as workers in the campaign. In this connection it will be of interest to note that many of the prominent citizens of Victoria and the surrounding districts have rung up the office to say that they have not yet been called upon; a fact which arises from a shortage of workers who are much needed and will be warmly welcomed at headquarters.

ASSISTANCE APPRECIATED
Members of the campaign committee are anxious that the many people who have given their time and energy to further the interests of the cause should accept the sincerest thanks of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

In particular, the committee would like to express its gratitude to Mrs. M. C. Robinson, wife of the superintendent of the National Institute, and to Mrs. John A. McDonald, wife of the secretary of the Institute, both ladies having been untiring in their efforts during the past week. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson have been married for the past twelve years, and Mr. Robinson has never seen his wife or his two children. Dr. McDonald became blind when he was fifteen years of age and it was chiefly owing to the encouragement laid out by Mrs. McDonald that he entered college and took his degree as M.D.

"GOOD-NIGHT" VALERIE
A number of people who heard Robinson speak over the air from CPCT last Wednesday night have wondered why he should have concluded his address with the words "Good-night Valerie." Valerie is Mr. Robinson's eight-year-old daughter who was listening to her father in Vancouver.

Yesterday there entered headquarters a crippled man who was offering The Montreal Standard for sale. One of his copies was bought for the sum of 5 cents, and he promptly placed 25 cents in the box which was placed on the table for the reception of casual contributions.

ROTARY CLUB'S ICE CARNIVAL AIDS CHARITY

President A. Carmichael Tells Vast Audience at Arena of Rotary's Community Service Work

OFFERS BEST HOPE FOR WORLD PEACE

"Rotary, by virtue of its international character, offers the best hope of the world for international peace," declared Mr. Alfred Carmichael, president of the Victoria Rotary Club last night, in officially opening the third annual Rotary ice carnival at the Willows Arena. President Carmichael stated that Rotary was an international organization with 3,223 clubs, with a total membership of over 150,000. It was established in fifty-four countries of the world. The cardinal principles of Rotary were acquaintance, to bring about understanding, fellowship to establish good will, friendship to encourage brotherhood, fair dealing to create confidence and service for co-operation and helpfulness. Rotary was established, he said, to cultivate these principles everywhere, locally, nationally and internationally.

"On behalf of the Rotary Club, I wish to thank you all for giving us your patronage at this ice carnival. Through the co-operation of the Vancouver Rotary Club, the Connaught Skating Club of Vancouver, the Victoria Skating Club and our visiting skating stars we are able to offer you a programme which we believe you will enjoy," Mr. Carmichael said.

The president tendered the sincere thanks and appreciation of the Rotary Club for the support and co-operation of the citizens of Victoria and vicinity to the three ice carnivals held here under the organization's auspices.

The generous support given last year's Rotary ice carnival and superfluity sale permitted the Rotary Club to disburse for community service work during 1928, the sum of $24,094, as follows: Quilts, Alexandra Solarium, $1,000; Social Service League, $150; Friendly Help, $150; Salvation Army, $150; Rotary Club Boys' Work Committee (extended principally through the Y.M.C.A.), $500; Canadian Tuberculosis Society (Kiwans Club activity), $25; and sundry charitable donations and cash in hand, $495.94.

WORLD IS NEARER PEACE THAN EVER

Sir Arthur Currie's Armistice Day Message Hopeful of Recent Developments Among Nations

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Corps in France, today issued the following Armistice Day message: "The Armistice became effective at the eleventh hour of the eleventh month of the year eleven years ago. This is the first occasion on which the anniversary falls on the same day of the week, Monday. It is a day of coincidences—full of happy auguries, I believe. Just as the Armistice brought to a close the most awful war in which mankind has ever participated, so Armistice Day this year brings to a close a period during which the nations were slowly and painfully finding their way back to satisfactory peaceful relations.

ARE THINKING PEACE

"In an Armistice message last year, I said: 'The nations are thinking at last as they never thought before, in terms of peace.' That is even more true today. The allied armies no longer occupy German territory; the Kellogg-Briand pact is regarded as a real basis of international relations and not as a mere gesture of goodwill; the Anglo-Saxon nations of the world have drawn closer together, and acute causes of friction between them have been removed; a disarmament conference will soon meet and the vision of a world forever at peace, and ideal for which Canadians shed their blood in generous profusion is nearer a reality today than ever before. If this be true, we have the solace and the comfort that the cruel war brought to a close eleven years ago was not fought in vain.

REVERE MEMORIES

"As the years go by, we cherish and revere more deeply the memory of those whose sacrifice was so glorious. And on this anniversary we pledge ourselves again to ensure that those sacrifices with all their splendor and inspiration to our country's life, shall not leave a legacy of unnecessary suffering. The task of all of us is to see not only that such sacrifices shall never again be called for, but that our country keeps the faith with the

AN INTERESTING FAMILY HISTORY

Dr. Robert G. Jackson's paternal grandfather, father and eleven paternal uncles and aunts, and his own brother and sister, all died of heart disease. At 80 the great Sir Wm. Osler gave the doctor himself only four months to live, dying from heart disease and "general breakdown." He'd lived five years on the ground floor, unable to climb stairs. Four years after Osler gave him up he climbed the fifty stories in Washington's Monument, up and down, and was not even tired. All a result of changed living habits—chiefly a change from civilization's disease-causing acid foods to alkali-forming Roman Meal. His 428-page book, "HOW TO BE ALWAYS WELL," tells the entire story—shows how anyone may be always well, by natural means. ## BATTALION TO HOLD REUNION

RALLY IN VANCOUVER ON NOVEMBER 23 OF MEMBERS OF 5TH KOOTENAY REGT.

Programme Arranged for Annual Dinner—Men From All Parts of B.C. to Attend

The second annual reunion dinner of the Fifty-fourth Kootenay Battalion will take place in the Hotel Georgia in Vancouver at 7 p.m. on Saturday, November 23. The presiding officer will be Major H. B. Hicks, and Sergeant W. G. Riddell, 1068 Homer Street, Vancouver, is the secretary.

Nearly 100 of the members of the Fifty-fourth Kootenay Battalion attended the last reunion, which was an outstanding success. A fine programme has been arranged for the month's rally, and it is expected that an even greater number of the "old boys" will be on hand.

A number of the battalion members are now residing on Vancouver Island, and they are especially urged to be present at the reunion.

The Fifty-fourth Battalion was mobilized under Colonel Davis (R.M.C.) in May, 1915, at Vernon, and recruited almost entirely from the East and West Kootenays. The men of the unit trained at Vernon until November, 1915, and then proceeded to England under the command of Colonel A. H. G. Kemball, C.B., D.S.O., and went into camp at Ashford.

The Battalion went to France on August 1, 1916, with the Fourth Division, and earned the sobriquet of "Fighting Fifty-fourth" in nearly every important engagement that the Fourth Division participated in.

WORK OF ARTIST HIGHLY PRAISED

Former Victorian Was Assistant Art Director of Hollywood Revue Film Shown Here

Of particular interest to Victorians is the connection of Mr. Richard W. Day with the film "The Hollywood Revue," shown at the Dominion Theatre last week, which attracted such a large number of film enthusiasts. Mr. Day, who is the son of Mrs. R. S. Day, of Victoria, was born in the city and went overseas with the 88th Fusiliers when only eighteen years of age. On his return from the war he moved to California, where he has steadily been gaining prominence in the art world. He is at present associated with Cedric Gibbons in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio at Culver City, near Hollywood, and has been in charge of the special scenic settings of some of the most outstanding film productions.

An assistant art director of the "Hollywood Revue," Mr. Day proved himself an artist of no uncertain merit, the settings being particularly fine and having caused much favorable comment.

He recently held an exhibition of his lithographs in California, which art critics praised highly. Following is an expression of opinion of one of California's critics: "Mr. Richard Day interprets our mountains and our deserts so splendidly that he might well be made the official artist-lithographer of Southern California. His mountains have solidity and weight. Back of them is that peculiar luminosity which is unique to California. He knows just how to place a lithograph in its proper frame and balance. Whoever coined the phrase 'dynamic symmetry' could easily have had the work of Richard Day in mind."

"When a man emerges as a creative artist, there is a certain brilliancy, or even a certain mastery, a 'knowing' and cunning feel to his technique. When he gets there he can then go on and make the statement which is the raison d'être of art. Richard Day has arrived at that eminence."

THE ARMISTICE: 1918-1929

Tomorrow, the eleventh anniversary of the Armistice, which brought about a cessation of fighting in the Great War, will be commemorated. The vast bulk of the present generation still recalls the motives which led the Empire into the struggle. By the time the Armistice came the people of the Empire had passed through tremendous physical and moral experiences. From the moral standpoint there was the great love of country that welled up in the hearts of youth and age, surging into a noble idealism. Before the war there were many who believed that youth was getting soft and selfish; that it was without aspiration; that it was unequal to the call of sacrifice. Those apprehensions were found to be groundless. Youth and age answered the summons with the utmost devotion.

Since the war there has been some disillusionment. The ideals it engendered have not been fulfilled, and, as a consequence, human judgment has become somewhat warped. What is forgotten is that there is always supreme idealism associated with supreme effort. In the times of crisis there are exalted hopes aroused. There is an appeal made on the highest plane so that human hearts may not falter. As a consequence of all this it is logical that there should be a discouraged, a cynical reaction after the war, and perhaps even against the motives which led to the Empire's entry to the struggle. With human nature constituted as it is that must always be the way, for idealism on earth is the unattainable. In looking back on the struggle in its proper perspective it is only necessary for each individual to ask himself when in his or her experience is an ideal ever fulfilled? In the light of any goal of the character set in view the results are always inadequate and that is why disenchantment is our heirloom through the ages.

The Great War the idealists told us was a war to end war. That it could never be while human nature is what it is. It was a war for a practical purpose; to put an end to a military menace, and, for a generation at least, it has accomplished what it set out to achieve. Had the British Empire not entered the struggle, with the very ideals which some people now deprecate, the world would be a vastly more unpleasant place to live in than it is today. This is the thought, above many others, to be borne in mind by those who suffer from disillusionment because the ideals which inspired the fighting spirit of 1914-1918 have not been fulfilled. The Great War, in no respect, was a vain effort. The objective was to defeat the ends of military autocracy and it was accomplished.

Armistice Day is peculiarly dedicated to the memory of the fallen. Those who laid down their lives in the Great War deserve all the gratitude that a contemporary generation can give them and their memory will be revered by ages yet to come. They died for an ideal, and if it has fallen short of attainment the sacrifice is that where ideals are concerned the way is per ardua ad astra. We may have dreamed greatly during the process of the Great War and our dreams have not come true, but, because of them, the world was purified in many ways in a crucible of suffering and it is a better world today. It is because of that our thoughts go out particularly to the men who fell in accomplishing a task of regeneration. It is the memory of these that is the profound symbol of the Armistice, the recollection of their unselfishness, their hate of injustice, their idealism and the purpose which they laid down their lives to accomplish.

A WEST COAST ROAD

The case for the building of a road from Sproat Lake to Tofino, to connect with the existing main highway to the Alberni from Victoria and to open up a development facility for West Coast points has been put forward forcibly time and again by different island interests. There is no doubt that of all the new highways proposed it is easily one of the most essential, for, except by sea, the West Coast is at present, in the way of transportation, isolated from this city. The West Coast settlers have been clamoring for this facility for a long time. It involves the construction of some thirty-five miles and will open up an area not only of great attraction to travelers from the scenic standpoint, but of high commercial use in supplying the needs of West Coast settlements.

The Department of Public Works is contemplating additions to the highways of Vancouver Island. There is sound argument and undoubtedly necessity in favor of the Sproat Lake-Tofino road being one of the first undertaken. The West Coast settlements have been too long in too isolated a situation with respect to other populated parts of Vancouver Island. A large potential industrial area would be opened up by this highway facility. Its provision would give the greatest impetus to West Coast development that has been brought about in the past two decades. It would give access to Long Beach with its famous sandy stretch, which some day, no doubt, will be utilized as a health resort and as a rendezvous for speed tests in the motor world. The main object of the road, however, would be to give the West Coast residents the communication with the rest of the Island to which they are fully entitled. Road-building, whenever undertaken, should be primarily for industrial needs, and that is exactly what the Sproat Lake-Tofino road would prove. It is the first logical highway connection with West Coast points that should be undertaken, and, having regard to all the aspects of the situation, there is hardly a doubt that the wisdom of the Public Works Department will view the matter from this aspect.

The construction of the Sproat Lake-Tofino road will present no engineering difficulties of an unusual character. The work should not prove costly, provided the proper route is chosen. There are not many streams to be crossed, a right of way with not too heavy a grade can be selected and the construction facilities available to the Government should make the enterprise one completed without any undue loss of time. Undoubtedly the facility would lead to increased settlement on the West Coast of the Island. As a settlement highway it presents many opportunities. Industries would have opportunities of utilizing it for bringing in supplies, and it would prove an undoubted attraction for tourists who at present cannot reach the West Coast by their motor cars. We commend the enterprise to the Department of Public Works which is now displaying so much vision in catering to the transportation facilities of British Columbia. The road mentioned comes under the category of a much-needed highway.

POLITICAL HALF-TRUTHS

Mr. Mackenzie King asks if the people of Canada realize the great extent to which his Government has reduced taxation since it came into power? It would only be possible to bring about a realization on the subject by comparing per capita taxation before 1921 with what it is today. Mr. King enumerates reductions his Government has made. He says nothing of increases and new taxes. He claims that the national debt has been reduced, but says nothing of the increases in the railway debt, which is a part of the national debt of the country. He prides himself on the fact that surpluses have been achieved in the budgets of the last five years, but forgets to tell his audiences that they have been made possible by allocating immense railway and other expenditures to capital account. He comments joyfully on the improved financial condition of the Canadian National Railways since the present Dominion Government took office, but omits to note that for the present financial year there must be a substantial falling off in railway receipts because of the situation created by the Wheat Pool.

Mr. King is a pastmaster in dealing with half-truths. What he says may be swallowed wholesale in the Prairies, a portion of the Dominion for which he has devised favored legislation in order to win its political support. Elsewhere, and especially in those portions of the country where the foreign population is sparse, there is no delusion respecting fiscal policies. The Prairies may be perfectly satisfied with the gathering volume of imports, and the growing tendency towards an actual adverse balance of trade, but the situation developing is creating serious disquietude in other parts of Canada. Premier King's political speeches leave the main essentials of fiscal independence untouched. They are conspicuous mostly for what they leave unsaid.

The Ramsay MacDonald Government has two distinct achievements to its credit and more than neutralizes the other. It has secured better terms for Great Britain in the reparations settlements, and it has destroyed the Entente Cordiale with France. A "united states" of Europe, from which Great Britain will remain isolated, is a distinct possibility of the future. In the condition in which public opinion is today, and with a League of Nations supposed to be functioning, it is a dangerous thing for any country to show predilections in international agreements.

THE SILENCE

The bugle calls and the silence falls.
O'er city, plain and stream.
Through saintly halls with their hallowed walls,
The silence reigns supreme.

We hear the tread of the cherished dead,
Across the sands of Time,
And o'er their bed 'neath the poppies red,
The church bells sweetly chime.

There sank our best in a lurid west,
While larks sang in the sky;
Some fell to rest on the ocean's breast,
Where lonely sea birds fly.

And 'neath the wave in a coral nave,
In state our loved ones lie,
A crystal grave for the nation's brave,
The vault of blue on high.

We saw that band with their leaders grand,
Go by like knights of yore,
To a distant land where they wave their hand,
From the sands of a golden shore.

Our thoughts will creep through the silence deep,
To those who suffer still;
Their vigil keep, and they may not sleep,
Though peace is on the hill.

—Mary J. Barron.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Very early in life, without the slightest intention of doing it, we were the cause of acute pain to one Scottish person, and possibly the cause of some concern to some other Scottish people. We were too young at the time of the unfortunate affair to be conscious of the circumstances, therefore we are unable to discuss them now with any assurance based upon knowledge. So we began life with the wrong foot foremost, and we appear to be going through life to the end with the wrong foot foremost. For we appear to be still inflicting pain upon Scottish people, or upon people who are interested in Scottish people.

But the score is not all on one side. We have a picture before us now of the old house upon a hill where we began life with the wrong foot foremost and began to inflict pain upon Scottish people. We have another picture before us of a pile of buildings, in which the tables were turned and one of the Scottish people began to inflict pain—at the time of the inflection it seemed like anguish—upon us. The second picture is that of a schoolhouse, and in that schoolhouse we can see with the eye of imagination a schoolmaster.

It is a long time since we saw that schoolmaster in the flesh, and possibly our mental picture of him may be somewhat distorted in the perspective of years; but as we see that dominion today he was a tall and strong man with a moustache saturated with snuff upon a fierce face that was always distorted with rage, with a pencil in his mouth that he was always chewing in his rage until it split, with a book in his hand that we were always expecting would be flung at our head, with a long-tailed coat with a pocket in the left-hand tail from which dangled the burnt fingers of a long pair of tawse which we knew from experience would soon be applied with the force of a strong hand upon a certain part of our person.

There was a chamber of horrors as well as a hall for the impartation of knowledge in that old school, and when the door of that chamber closed upon an unfortunate offender a silence that could be felt descended upon the scholars until it was broken by the shrieks of the victim of stern disciplinary measures.

Nevertheless notwithstanding those early experiences, we are not conscious of cherishing and nourishing any spite against the Scottish people. On the contrary, there are many sweet and tender memories associated with that old house on the hill and pleasant reminiscences of the old boys whose young ideas were taught to shoot straight by the chronically wrathful master. We are not prejudiced against Ramsay MacDonald because he is Scotch. We criticize him because he is a Scotsman who appears to be destitute of love of his country, because he never appears to have said to himself, as a true Scotchman would: "Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said, this is my own, my native land?"

If we know anything about the history of the Scottish people, and particularly of the history of the Highland Scottish people, love of country, loyalty to the clan, loyalty to the death to the clan, actual or pretended, was one of the chief and most lovable of the characteristics of those people. We know it is written: "Judge not, that you be not judged"; but we must form our judgment of all sorts and conditions of men, whatever their position in the world, by their conduct and their utterances.

We also know that there is a somewhat brilliant school of philosophy today whose professors believe that love of country and of our own kin is something to be reprehended rather than commended; that professions of nationalism should be suppressed and sentiments of internationalism cultivated.

We have never read of Ramsay MacDonald giving expression to sentiments of loyalty to Scotland or his own people. We have read of Mr. MacDonald giving expression to his belief in the divine principles of internationalism and of his hope of uniting all the world in the bonds of a common brotherhood. Possibly our heart is not so large nor our views so broad as the heart and views of the Prime Minister. Whatever our racial origin, we are British in sentiment and proud of the history of our country, and have no reason to be ashamed of the tolerance of the British people. There is not another country in the world that would have forgiven Ramsay MacDonald for his conduct during the war and elected him to the position of Prime Minister. In fact, if Mr. MacDonald had been a Russian or a German and acted as he did during the war, his name in those countries today would be but an evil memory. But let the dead pass bury their dead. Ramsay MacDonald is Prime Minister of Great Britain, and if he attends strictly to the duties of his high office he will have sufficient to occupy his

SOLDIER SETTLEMENT

Sir,—The account given in The Colonist of November 6, which is partly an extract from The Salmon Arm Observer, of the treatment that many of the soldier settlers of Salmon Arm are now receiving at the hands of the Soldier Settlement Board will surely arouse a profound feeling of disgust and shame in the hearts of all honest and kind-hearted people in this province, as well as bitter resentment among the comrades of these men. For it was a very shameful thing that these soldier settlers on their return from war were made the victims of the most blatant and profiteering. That some of them may have been easy victims is possible, but that excuses nothing.

The direct and inevitable result of such a so-called settlement is the present position of the men, threatened by the Soldier Settlement Board with eviction. That the Canadian Legion will act promptly in order to protect these men from the officials at Ottawa is a certainty, but from the attitude of the Settlement Board this business seems to demand not only the close attention of the legion, but to be a matter of public importance.

I quote an extract from The Salmon Arm Observer: "The Soldier Settlement Board has intimated that settlement has no room to be considered. They are handling this as a matter of business."

If this quotation really represents the mind of the board, and the facts seem to leave no room for doubt, so cynical a repudiation of the country's debt to the soldier can hardly be exceeded. Of course, it is only a debt of honor, for settlement is the very reason for soldier settlement—the sentiment of gratitude for past service. Sentiment, despised and rejected by the Settlement Board, was in fact the force, or motive that hurried civilians into soldier settlement—the sentiment of patriotism.

But a gratitude for benefits received is too often even in the minds of a very erroneous sentiment. How much more is it so with governments and the politicians who compose them?

History repeats itself. After the Waterloo campaign a grateful country rewarded its injured warriors, the victors of that time, by licensing them to beg on the public streets. Is the treatment proposed in dealing with our comrades at Salmon Arm much better?

First, for the benefit of land owners, they were saddled with an impossible load of debt which the present Government proposes to liquidate by confiscation.

CALLOUS MOTORISTS
Sir,—I have witnessed five dogs killed between Bank and Davies Streets within two years, not counting a few innocent cats. I had a very valuable Yorkshire terrier killed, but the motor driver certainly carried the body and placed it on the vacant lot. A few years back twenty or twenty-five miles an hour was considered fast and reckless driving, but since Oak Bay Avenue has been made into a highway the speed is gradually getting up and up until I presume fifty or sixty miles an hour will become the order of the day.

I am afraid that dog lovers will have to move and take their pets away into the backwoods, for to my way of looking at the subject there is apparently no law to prevent

The next meeting of the Kiwanis Club will be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Monday night, November 18.

"PREVENTIVE DEFENCE" will be the subject of an address which Colonel the Hon. James Layton Ralston, D.C., K.C.M.G., D.S.O. (with bar), D.C.L., Federal Minister of National Defence, will deliver at the Men's Canadian Club luncheon at 12:15 p.m. on Wednesday in the Empress Hotel ballroom. The minister has been prominently identified with the public life of Canada for many years, and is recognized as a brilliant speaker. Mr. P. B. Ralston, president of the Canadian Club, will preside, and introduce the distinguished speaker-guest.

There will be no meeting of the Gyro Club this week, owing to Monday being Thanksgiving and Armistice Day. The next meeting of the club will be held on Monday, November 18, at 12:10 p.m. in the Empress Hotel, when club business will be considered.

The programme for the Rotary Club luncheon, to be held at noon on Thursday in the Empress Hotel ballroom, is in the hands of the vocational service committee, of

Funeral Service for Late Mrs. Rant Will Be Held on Tuesday

A very wide circle of friends have learned with regret of the passing Friday night of Mrs. Annie Rant, wife of Captain W. J. Rant, of "Beaverley," Parsons Bridge, and an oldtime resident of Victoria.

The late Mrs. Rant came to Victoria in 1893 and had resided here continuously since that time. She was born at Rangoon, Burma, and before coming here had lived for some years in India, where her husband was stationed as an officer in the British Army.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Rant leaves two sons, Norman W. F., of Victoria, and Gordon Trevor, of Victoria, six daughters, Mrs. Beecham Tye, Mrs. W. P. D. Pemberton, Mrs. J. McNeill and Miss Muriel, all of Victoria, and Mrs. G. W. Marriott, and Mrs. Edward Clarke, of Vancouver. Two daughters, Mrs. Allan H. Wyllie and Mrs. E. W. Floyer predeceased her.

Funeral services will be held at Christ Church Cathedral at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday. Burial will be in the cemetery at St. John's Church, Colwood.

McBride Club to Debate Question of Empire Trade

A discussion on the subject of Empire Trade is taking place in the Unity Hall, 739 Yates Street, under the Amphion Hall, on Wednesday evening. This debate on a question that is very much in the public mind will be under the auspices of the McBride Conservative Club (incorporated).

In addition to this interesting discussion, there will also be an address on compulsory vaccination by Mr. G. B. Kito.

The meeting is one of the regular monthly ones of the McBride Club. It is called for 8 o'clock, and after the regular business has been transacted, it is proposed to throw the meeting open to personal addresses of the members of the organization who will be welcomed, and will be able to hear the discussion of Empire Trade and the address of Mr. Kito.

The new president of the club, Captain Hugh Allen, will preside. The organization is entering upon an active programme for the winter months. Fortnightly meetings will be held and an interesting series of meetings has been outlined.

Beware of Bladder Weakness Getting-Up-Nights

Disturbed Rest Undermines Health, Says Vitality, States Physician, Who Recommends Home Treatment

Men and women who are constantly annoyed and distressed by Bladder Weakness or Urinary Irritations should take immediate steps to combat their trouble before it reaches a serious or perhaps dangerous stage.

Backaches, headaches, pains in feet and legs, nervousness, restlessness, frequent urination, urinary irritations—these are some of the symptoms which indicate bladder weakness or irritation that should be treated promptly.

No matter how stubborn your case may be, or how many different medicines you may have tried without success, don't give up, and think your case hopeless, or the natural consequence of advancing years, until you have tried the special secret prescription of Dr. Southwood, a physician of over 40 years' successful experience.

In order to reach the many thousands who cannot come to his office, Dr. Southwood has placed his URATARS in and out of the market, and invites you to try them without risk of cost, unless pleased. If URATARS bring you swift and certain comfort you will be happy. If they do not satisfy, they will cost you nothing—so, if you need this grand medicine, try it today. All good druggists.

Any non-members desiring to be present are requested to communicate with Mr. George A. Dyson, acting secretary, telephone 7138, by Wednesday noon.

INDIAN HAS WEIRD TALE OF KILLINGS

Makes Statement That He Killed Three Men, But Inconsistent Confession Investigated

CORDOVA, Alaska, Nov. 9.—A third story of three killings was told today by Robert Davis, Umatilla Indian, who was being held in the Federal prison at Valdez, awaiting indictment by the Grand Jury. He was brought 1,000 miles from Kanatka where he had surrendered himself to a Government school teacher.

The murders to which Davis was alleged to have confessed, included the killing of a trapper with an axe for his traps, the killing of a second trapper for a boat after the victim had given him shelter for a night and rowed him across a bay to save a long walk. While on his way to Kanatka with a halfbreed named Emma Watson, Davis, in his confession, said they had quarreled and that he shot him. Davis changed his story of the killing of the trappers after a search, instigated by the attorney-general, failed to reveal the bodies.

Investigation by the attorney-general revealed that Davis had served terms in a California reformatory and Washington penitentiary for larceny; San Quentin for attempted murder and was sentenced to Folsom, California, for robbery.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

NERVOUS CHILDREN

Many children early in life develop a neurotic temperament. The child who is born with a thin face and a tight chest will always be a nervous child. The parents recognize this tendency and give the proper care to the child's physical, mental and emotional development.

The round-faced, full-chested child has naturally a good digestion and is inclined to be phlegmatic and sluggish, but seldom becomes nervous. He may be subject to rheumatism later in life, but the sensitive child must be trained carefully to avoid neurasthenia, and such disorders as chorea or St. Vitus' dance. This trouble commonly appears between the ages of five and fifteen, and is more frequent with boys than with girls. It is characterized by jerky movements of the arms, hands, legs and feet, and involuntary twitchings of the muscles of the face, neck and chest.

The seat of this disease is in the brain and spinal cord, but one of the causes lies in a systematic encephalitis which locates in those parts. The nervous child who is fed on bad food combinations and given an excess of richly foods will build up a morbid toxicosis which creates an irritation of the large nerve centres.

Such irritation is made worse and literally multiplied by wrong mental training. If the parents cater to every desire and whim of the child, they are definitely educating the child to get what he wants by a show of temper or nervous. The winning child is one who has learned his tricks from the mother who ignorantly gives what he wants to stop the coaxing.

HARVEST CANTATA TOMORROW EVENING

Young, Sparkling Voices Chosen for Solo in Delightful Work at Emmanuel Church

On Monday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, in Emmanuel Baptist Church, the choir, under the direction of Fred Parfit, will present the harvest cantata, "Song of Thanksgiving." This is a bright, delightful and enchanting work by Maunders. Soloists have been chosen for their young, bright, sparkling voices, and great care has been taken in preparation of the chorus numbers. The cantata is short. To lovers of music, who hear this, it will be both refreshing and profitable. Mr. Jesse Longfield has kindly promised to preside at the organ, while the regular organist, Mrs. G. H. E. Green, will take the piano. With the instruments in such competent hands the audience can be assured of a fine rendering of this work.

VIMY RIDGE MEMORIAL IS ADVANCING

Brigadier-General Hughes,
Chief Engineer of Canadian
Battlefields Memorial
Commission, Returns

TO BE READY FOR
UNVEILING IN 1932

Reconstructed Trenches Win Admiration of Increasing Number of Battlefields Pilgrims

The Vimy war memorial will be unveiled in 1932, Brig.-Gen. H. T. Hughes, chief engineer of the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission, says on his return here on leave. General Hughes explained that the staff has concentrated on this great memorial, one of the most stupendous monumental efforts of the Western front.

The stone for this monument comes from the ancient Roman quarries around the Bay of Spalato, in Dalmatia. Stone quarried there nearly two thousand years ago for a palace of the Emperor Diocletian remains in excellent shape, and thus after a most exhaustive search in Europe the product of these Adriatic quarries is being carried in huge blocks to the scene of operations.

REMARKABLE MONUMENT
The outline of this remarkable memorial is familiar throughout Canada, owing to the circulation of many pictures. The names of 15,000 missing men are being carved on the lower portion of the monument. The Vimy memorial being one of the two on which names are carved, the other being the Menin Gate at Ypres, where the names of 7,500 missing have been inscribed. The monument is designed not only to commemorate the taking of the ridge on April 9, 1917, and other engagements described as battles of Arras, but the whole achievements of Canadian troops in France during the Great War.

While waiting for the stone to arrive, the famous Grange Labyrinth—miles of underground passages which the Canadians pushed out close to the German lines—was examined, and the discoveries proved so interesting that the commission decided to rebuild the trenches, preserve the dugouts and make the Grange Tunnel a permanent sight for visitors. The trenches have been lined with concrete sandbags, the duckboards have been cast in concrete, all wood has been removed and the passages have been reinforced with concrete and metal.

TO LAST CENTURY
General Hughes thinks the Grange Tunnel has now a lifetime of a hundred years before it. These subways were constructed early in 1917 to aid the concentration of the Canadian troops for the attack on Vimy Ridge. The Grange Tunnel is the largest of the eleven which were then built and was constructed by the 7th Canadian Infantry Brigade. It had three exits for the troops.
The French Government transferred to Canada 250 acres of land at Vimy Ridge to enable a proper

Col. J. H. Woods to Be Entertained by Victoria Chamber

COL. J. H. Woods, of Calgary, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who will be accompanied by other officials of that organization, will be the guest of honor at the quarterly dinner meeting of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, which will be held in the Chamber Cafe at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Representatives of all Vancouver Island boards of trade will also be in attendance to welcome the distinguished guest, and the music for the evening will be furnished by the special orchestra of the Chamber.

development of the estate in perpetual remembrance. "Thus," as the Paris correspondent of the Times, London, wrote at the time, "Vimy Ridge became in the legal sense as well as in the spiritual sense territory that is Canadian."

The choice of this memorial to record many of the names of the missing was made because it was felt to be the most representative in France, as the Memorial Arch at the Menin Gate at Ypres had been selected for a similar purpose in Belgium. Already as a place of pilgrimage this decision has been abundantly justified.

POPULAR WITH VISITORS
The battlefields have become very popular. General Hughes said, as communication has been extended by the permission to proceed beyond Ypres, and owing to the proximity to Arras, numbers of automobiles and charr-a-bancs are to be seen during the season, hundreds of visitors coming to visit the scene of the famous engagements.
General Hughes first came to Victoria in 1919 with his family intending to settle, and was on a visit to San Francisco when invited to return to France for the Memorial Commission and, except for occasional visits to his home here, he has been continuously engaged on the undertaking since that time. He has incidentally made forty-seven crossings of the Atlantic. He mentioned to The Colonist representative that seven Canadian battlefields monuments have already been handed over to the Imperial War Graves Commission to be looked after for Canada in perpetuity. He expects to return to Europe in February.

Jameson Motors, Limited, Vancouver Island Distributors for C.G.E. Radiola, were busy yesterday unloading, unpacking and delivering to local C.G.E. Radiola dealers four lots of radiola. This shipment was received from the Canadian General Electric Company, Toronto. This year Radiola has proven an exceedingly popular line and it has nearly been an impossible task for Jameson Motors to take care of the local demand for C.G.E. Radiola. Yesterday's shipment consisted principally of the new models "44" and "46," also "33."

CAR OVERTURNS WOMAN INJURED DRIVER UNHURT

Mrs. E. Welland, of 1803
Quadra Street, Sustains
Spinal Injury and Bad
Bruises in Accident

SLIPPERY ROAD IS HELD RESPONSIBLE

While W. B. Wellwood, driver of the car, miraculously escaped injury, Mrs. E. Wellwood, his mother, 1803 Quadra Street, sustained a serious spinal injury and bad bruises, when their automobile, proceeding north on Quadra Street, skidded on Rithet's Hill and turned over on the roadside at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred about one mile south of Royal Oak.

According to Mr. Wellwood's story to Chief Allan Rankin of the Provincial Police, his car skidded when he applied the brakes, travelled across the road, hit a bank and turned over on its side. A recent slight rainfall had made the road surface slippery.

Passers-by rushed Mrs. Wellwood to the Saanich Health Centre where Dr. J. M. Fowler attended her. The physician ordered Mrs. Wellwood removed to the Jubilee Hospital. The C. and C. ambulance was dispatched to the Saanich Health Centre and conveyed the injured woman to the Victoria hospital. She was resting easily at an early hour this morning.

"Well, thank Heaven, food's coming down at last," exclaimed the native housewife, as an aviator was about to make a forced landing on a cannibal island.

New Building—A four-suite apartment house will be erected by Mr. John Moxam at the corner of Beach Drive and Herriot Street, Oak Bay, at a cost of $26,000, a permit for the project having been issued yesterday at the Oak Bay Municipal Hall. The building will be two stories high. Mr. Percy Fox is the architect.

To Resume Routes—Announcement is made by the B.C. Electric traffic department that the Hillside and Burnside cars will resume their normal routes on Tuesday morning, entering and leaving the city directly by way of Douglas Street. Passengers for the Hillside and Burnside districts will board cars at any regular car stop on Douglas Street.

Educational Worker Expected Here—It is expected that Rev. John R. Mott, a well-known educational worker, will visit Victoria for a few hours on Friday, before crossing to Vancouver.

Dr. Mott, who is on his way to Toronto from the Orient, will meet a selected group of university students in Vancouver, and will address an international rally of men the same night.

Burns' Club Meeting—At their monthly meeting in Amphion Hall next Tuesday evening, November 12, members of the Burns Club will have as a speaker Dr. A. O. Macrae, who has promised to address them on St. Andrew, Patron Saint of Scotland. In addition to Dr. Macrae's address, there will be a programme of songs and recitations rendered by a group of local artists. The chair will be occupied by Mr. John Hostie, president of the club.

To Contest Honors—Two junior stock judging teams from this province will attend the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, to compete against other teams. A team from Salmon Arm, which consists of Hugh McLeod and Harry Naylor, will travel as guests of the Canadian Pacific Railway president, who takes a deep interest in this movement, while another team consisting of Robert Hornby and James McCallum will travel from Armstrong as the guests of the president of the Canadian National Railways. The boys are those successful in the various clubs of the province, who won the first places at the tests at New Westminster and Vancouver fairs.

Thanks to the Rotary Club management, children from the Orphans' Home and the Children's Aid Home were guests at the Rotary Ice Carnival yesterday evening. Thanks are extended by Mr. J. North to Wipers and the Royal Candy Kitchen for candies; the Vancouver Island Transportation Company for the transport of the children, and in the latter connection help of the Central Transfer Company is also acknowledged.

A lady rang up a London club and said to the hall porter: "You might ask my husband to speak." "I'm sorry," said the porter instantly, "he's not here." How can you say that? demanded the lady angrily, "when you don't know his name yet?" "It doesn't matter, madam," said the man politely, "my instructions are that nobody's husband is ever here."

Money back if not satisfied.

Gonzales Chapter

The regular monthly meeting of Gonzales Chapter, I.O.E., was held at headquarters on November 5. A standing vote of sympathy on the death of her father was extended to Mrs. Chisholm. Reports from the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter at Chilliwack were read. In commemoration of Armistice Day the Chapter will this year present a challenge cup to Monterey School on Tuesday afternoon. Appreciation was expressed of Mrs. Cornwell's splendid work in connection with the Girl Guides, and the members hoped that Mrs. Cornwell would consent to represent the Chapter at the Girl Guides Association. A donation of $10 was voted to the Ex-Servicemen's Society of London, England, for mentally disabled soldiers. Several members volunteered to canvass for contributions to the fund for the Western Division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Columbia W.A.

Courtenay Guides

The Courtenay Girl Guides held their annual meeting this week in the public school by permission of the School Board. In addition to last year's committee of ten and some twenty-six friends, the first Courtenay and first Cumberland guide companies and the Royston and Courtenay Brownie packs were present. Several recruits were enrolled before general business commenced. Mrs. Capes, as president, read a report covering the year's work, and this was followed by the financial report. Mrs. Ringrose, captain of the first Royston Company, reported an increase in numbers and a good deal of activity. Mrs. Greig, Royston, reported the formation of a guide company in Cumberland, with Mrs. Finch as lieutenant. Mrs. J. Idens, Royston, turned in a satisfactory report of Brownie activities for the Royston pack. The president made an appeal for a guide for the Courtenay Brownies, who may otherwise be disbanded. Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Capes; vice-president, Mrs. Clinton; honorary secretary, Miss Rea; honorary treasurer, Mrs. B. Harvey; committee, Mrs. P. McIntyre, Mrs. G. L. Bourdillon, Mrs. Robathan, Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. G. H. Ashe, Mrs. Tyler, Mrs. C. C. Holmes and Mrs. Conway.

The Long and Short of It

Right—Silk and wool ensemble.

THE new suit may look like anything from a three-piece frock to a winter coat. The short jacket is, sometimes, distinctly different from the skirt; at other times, it so carefully follows the theme in cut and design that it appears to be part of a frock.

The ensemble coat may be, and is, almost any length. The seven-eighths coat is the only one which preserves the fashion of other years in this season's interpretations. This is the three-piece theme, with skirt and blouse separate, and the blouse of the sweater type, rather long. But the lines of the coat have changed very much. They show the influence of the new silhouette. Ending above the hem of the frock, the seven-eighths coat in its newest version uses the full-length lines. The short jacket may be so brief as to be almost Eton or it may, as in the Chanel model shown at the left, come well below the hips.

This ensemble is created in rust and colored tweed. The paneling of the unusual jacket is repeated in the skirt, which you will note adheres to the circular theme. No buttons are used on the short jacket, and this is a feature possessed in common by the majority of the brief coats. The new cape line is incorporated in the collar of beaver. This fur is used at the cuffs also. The flat silk bow at the fur collar is a delightfully youthful.

Vionnet has been marvelously successful in her daring combination of silks and wool fabrics. This ensemble, too, is stamped with her genius for geometrical design. The frock makes use of black wool, in a light weight, and the sleeves are of yellow crepe. The rounded neckline, ending in the soft bow is unusual and flattering. The coat of the ensemble, at the extreme right, uses the descending back line, which, however, does not influence the soft lines of the afternoon ensemble. The waistline is designated by cutting and the hemline flares gracefully.

Miscellaneous Shower

In honor of Miss Lily Cross, whose marriage will take place shortly, Mrs. F. Stringer and Miss F. McKinnon were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower which took place at the home of the former, 1317 Pembroke Street, on Friday evening. The bride-elect was the recipient of many useful gifts which filled a basket prettily decorated with pink and white paper rose petals. While Mrs. A. Bell played the wedding march, little Miss Evelyn Stringer, seated on a toy aeroplane, which was similarly decorated, wheeled the basket to the guest of honor. Pink and white streamers and chrysanthemums of the same color decorated the reception-rooms. During the evening vocal and piano solos were rendered by Mrs. Stringer and Miss Bell. Games were indulged in, the prizes being won by Mrs. Stringer and Miss Anita Davies. Refreshments were served later by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. J. Turnbull. The tea table was centred with a bride's cake, topped with a kewpie bridal group. The invited guests were Mesdames D. Cross, T. E. Rigby, J. Turnbull, W. McKinnon, G. Woollett, R. H. Bassett, M. L. Hector, A. Bell, F. H. Rigby, H. B. Clark and R. Rigby, Misses Lily Cross, L. Jamieson, A. ### Thanksgiving Social

The Garden City United Church was filled to capacity on Friday evening when the annual Thanksgiving supper and entertainment were held. The tables, which were laden with good things to eat, were prettily decorated with pink, white and yellow chrysanthemums, and were in charge of members of the Woman's Association. Following the supper an excellent entertainment was enjoyed. Rev. H. A. Ireland, pastor of the church, was chairman, and after a few brief words of welcome introduced the artists and speaker for the evening. Rev. (Dr.) Clem Davies of the City Temple, Victoria, who addressed the gathering and emphasized the need of thankfulness for all the benefits we enjoy in this present day. Miss Demmstedt gave a pianoforte solo besides acting as accompanist for the evening. Baritone solos were sung by Mr. W. R. Woods, tenor solos by Mr. F. L. Tupman, and humorous songs by Mr. R. Hardy and humorous recitations were given by Mr. F. L. Tupman, Master Eddie Lewis and Mr. R. Hardy. At the conclusion of the programme Rev. H. A. Ireland thanked the ladies who had provided and served the supper, and the artists who had contributed so willingly to the evening's enjoyment.

Tea Hostesses

At James Bay Hotel

Mrs. L. Laffer and the Misses Laffer have arrived from South Australia and are at the James Bay Hotel.

California Visitors

The Misses Mona and Doris Jewell, house and family of California, are staying for a few months at Brenta Lodge.

Here from Santa Barbara

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hammond, of Santa Barbara, are guests at Brenta Lodge.

Here for Winter

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pinkerton have taken an apartment in the Waldron for the winter months.

From New Mexico

Mr. F. W. Hollington, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, has joined his parents at the James Bay Hotel.

In Port Alberni

Mrs. S. White and her son, George, have left by motor to spend the week-end in Port Alberni.

South Pender, Saturna

Mrs. Clifford Adams returned to Victoria on Monday, after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Payne, Saturna Island.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Payne, accompanied by their daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Adams and Elizabeth, visited South Pender on Sunday and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Spalding.

Mrs. Burnette, of Saturna Island, spent a few days in Victoria last week.

Mrs. L. H. Walker, of Vancouver, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Spalding, for a few days.

Mrs. W. V. Pender, of Duncan, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Spalding, for a part of the week.

Mr. H. A. Spalding, in his launch, the Margaret, visited Sidney and Victoria last Saturday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Irving, Miss Tobin and Mr. A. Bellhouse.

The marriage of Captain T. L. Higgs, eldest son of the late Mrs. L. S. Higgs and of Mrs. Higgs, of South Pender, took place in Vancouver on November 30 to Miss Kathleen Westwood, of Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Spalding celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their wedding day on November 6. The dinner guests were Mrs. Higgs, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Pender, Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Tobin, Mr. G. F. Richardson and Mr. N. A. Richardson.

Mrs. Conroy, of South Pender, is spending a few days in Victoria.

Langford Silver Tea

Mrs. A. G. Mackie, of "The Gowan," will be hostess on Monday afternoon, November 11, (Armistice Day), at her annual silver tea, from 3 until 5 o'clock. A good musical programme has been arranged, and the proceeds will be given to help with the funds of the Women's Auxiliary of the Prince Edward Branch No. 91, Canadian Legion.

Port Alberni Social

Mrs. M. Anderson has just returned from Vancouver, where she spent a few days.

A party of Port Alberni people visited at Cumberland last week to attend a social held by the Eagles Lodge there. Among those were Mr. and Mrs. McLean and Mr. Neil McLeod.

Mr. Val Dalby, of Royston, is a visitor in Port Alberni this week.

The Armistice dance, held in the Community Hall on Friday evening, was well attended. Ken's Serenaders supplied the best music that Port Alberni has heard for a long time. Among those present were Mrs. and Mr. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Cronk, Misses Margaret Plaut, Edna Smith, Betty Hillon, Dora Hills and Marian Donovan, Messrs. MacKay, George Harris, Gordon Orr, Leland Cooper, Aunger Hansen, L. Larson, Val Dalby and others.

Nanaimo Personals

Winners of the partner "whist" drive held in the Army and Navy Hall last evening were as follows: First, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey; second, Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Tiekie; third, Mrs. McCormick and partner.

Miss Beatrice Cornish, Selby Street, left yesterday afternoon for Vancouver, where she will spend the week-end with relatives.

Miss Ethel Green, Wallace Street, left this morning for Vancouver to spend the week-end with her mother.

At the home of Mrs. Joseph Randle, Five Acres, yesterday afternoon, the members of the Five Acres Mission and friends gathered to present the wear, Rev. G. Stevenson, with a desk pen and holder, also a framed illuminated address signed by the various contributors. Mrs. Stevenson was the recipient of a cut glass bowl and a bouquet of flowers, and their daughter, Miss Nellie Stevenson, received a beaded bag. On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson are leaving for Seattle. Mrs. Stevenson is residing at Lady Smith. During the interval of presentations last evening, Mrs. Robert T. Wilson added greatly to the pleasure of the gathering with piano solos.

Shower at Sidney

Complimentary to Miss Kathleen Watts, whose marriage to Mr. C. Pearson takes place on Monday, Mrs. J. A. Nunn entertained at a delightful miscellaneous shower at her home, "The Orchards," on Thursday afternoon. The reception room had been prettily arranged with bouquets of sweet peas and chrysanthemums and sprays of Autumn foliage. The afternoon passed pleasantly at games and other amusements, a pleasing party occurring when a prettily decorated wedding cake was brought into the room for Miss Watts to cut. Upon examining the cake, Miss Watts found it to contain a number of dainty and useful gifts, for which she thanked her friends. Refreshments were then served by the hostess and expressions of good wishes were extended to the bride-elect. The invited guests included: Mrs. J. Wark and Gertrude and Ralph Wark, Mrs. J. A. Nunn, Mrs. Jackson and Beale and Mary Jackson and baby Norbury and George and Gladys Carter, Mrs. F. King, Mrs. Skinner, Mrs. Brouseau, Mrs. Simpson and baby Doreen, Mrs. A. Tyerman, Mrs. F. Larson and Miss Kathleen Watts.

Successful Bazaar

A successful bazaar was held on Friday in the S.O.E. Hall, under the auspices of Lodge Primrose No. 32, Daughters of England. It was opened at 2:15 o'clock by the D.D.G.P., Mrs. A. Hatcher, a bouquet being presented her by little Miss Edna Maynard, who was vended by Mrs. McKenzie, who was also presented with a bouquet by the president, Mrs. Baron. The following were in charge of the stalls: Plain sewing, Mrs. Bishop; fancywork, Mrs. Skett; candy, Mrs. Stephenson; home cooking, Mrs. Joyce; bran tub, Mrs. Blakemore; miscellaneous, Mrs. Skinner; cake raffle, Mrs. Garrett; afternoon tea, Mrs. Cave. The S.O.E. boys' football team also had a miscellaneous stall to raise funds for their teams, which was well patronized. At 5:30 o'clock a short meeting was held, during which an impressive ceremony took place, when Mrs. Hatcher placed a poppy and laurel wreath on the roll of honor, when a few minutes' silence was observed. At the close of the meeting a partner wheel drive was held, those winning prizes being Mrs. Cuth and Mr. Blackburn, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Wright; consolation, Mrs. Hatcher and Mrs. Humber.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

At all events the tweed coat is smart enough to be sure that it is in the right place. All of which signifies that it is one of the outstanding sartorial triumphs of the season. The model sketched above of brown, orange and beige gives evidence of the inimitable design on the part of tweeds to adopt all the chic details of the new vogue. That it has succeeded to an amazing degree is noted in the Princess silhouette, the flared upward sweeping flounce, and the flared cuff on the tight sleeves. Deserving of a red letter in the style diary is the wide belt coming through the opening at each side of the front and buttoning snugly at the normal waistline.

POPPY DAY IS BIG SUCCESS

ARMISTICE PERIOD FUND SHOWS GRATIFYING IN-CREASE AS RESULT

Net Total This Year, All Sources,
Will Be Double Last Year's—
Crippled Boy Aids

With a total of $2,701.12, Poppy Day, organized by the Armistice Period Committee, closed its street sale yesterday $900 in excess of last year's receipts. Yesterday's street sale of poppies made the total from all sources to date for the Armistice Period Fund $5,774.07. To this sum a further $300 will be added when all accounts are settled. It is estimated, making a total of $6,074.07. Approximate expenses amounting to $2,200 must be deducted from this, leaving a net balance of about $3,874. Last year's net fund was only $1,580. Mr. H. W. Hart, secretary of the Armistice Period Committee, last evening expressed the thanks of the organizers to all helpers and contributors.

"Special mention," he said, "should be made of a little crippled boy who gave his services for the whole morning, and after selling his evening papers hopped back to headquarters on his crutches to see if he could give any further help. Another instance of devoted service was that of a very small girl, who took up her position at 8:30 in the morning, and because there was no one to relieve her, stayed in the biting wind until 12:30 before coming in. On learning that there was no relief available she returned to her post, and waited until another person could be sent to take her place."

31,000 POPPIES SOLD

The total number of poppies sold yesterday was over 31,000, an increase of more than 5,000 over last year's number. The supply of poppies gave out during the day, and sellers had to leave their posts while citizens were still trying to secure their "tokens of remembrance." The highest individual price paid for a poppy was $50.

"I must have a poppy to wear in my coat," one late-comer declared. "I don't care what kind it is, but I must have one." A veteran took one from his coat, and the gentleman tendered a $5 bill in exchange. "How much change do you want?" he was asked. "I don't want any change," the reply was, "I only want my poppy."

At no time since November 11, 1918, has the spirit of Armistice been so pronounced in Victoria as it was yesterday, when the Armistice Period Committee conducted the annual street sale of the "poppy of remembrance." Almost every coat displayed the crimson flower, and long after the last one was sold citizens were clamoring for them at headquarters.

Poppies were busy all day pinning the flowers on buyers' coats. A constant round was made by Boy Scouts and others with fresh supplies. When one's supply was exhausted, they were forced to come in and replenish their stocks, because those near headquarters robbed the messengers to augment their own depleted supplies before

Unconscious 11 Days But Will Recover

GEORGE WILSON

Four years old, has been unconscious in a shaded ward in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, for eleven days after he had been run over by an automobile, opening his eyes for the first time on October 31, to find his mother smiling down at him. Mrs. Wilson has been watching her little boy ever since George was injured. His recovery is practically assured now and George will soon be coming around his home again if his progress continues as favorable as it has been.

the boys could reach their intended destinations.

As a "reconnaissance in force," the day was a great success, clearing the way for a general advance on the objective of $10,000 which the committee have set out to attain.

BAND OF HELPERS

Credit for the success is due to Mrs. I. Chambers, general convenor, and the splendid band of helpers who sold poppies, worth a few cents, for as high a price as $50; to Mr. J. Waterman, sales manager, and his canvassing staff; and Capt. C. F. L. Money and Mr. Bengough, who handled the streams of cash that flowed in.

An urgent bulletin in the windows of The Colonist and The Times brought large numbers of ladies with offers to act as sellers; in fact the response was so large that only a small percentage could be used.

Mixed with the varied assortment of coins were the following bills: 166 $1, 34 $2, 17 $5, 6 $10, 1 $50, and cheques for $20 and $5.

"We wish to express our grateful thanks to all who helped or contributed to the fund, and to assure our sick and needy comrades that the effort will not cease until a net fund of $10,000 is raised," the committee announce.

Accounts payable for wreaths and poppies exceed $1,700, and overhead, including wages for sales manager and canvassers (all seriously disabled men), stenographer, and printing, postage, stationery and other unavoidable expenses will amount to approximately $500, leaving about $3,000, which, with accounts receivable, will exceed $3,500, as against last year's net fund of $1,580.

Chinese Organization Celebrates
Thirtieth Anniversary—Wide
Area Represented

Delegates numbering approximately thirty, representing various branches of the Dart Coon Club in different Canadian cities, will assemble at 556 Fisgard Street, club headquarters, today to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the club. Representatives from Kamloops, Vancouver, Cumberland, Duncan, Nanaimo, Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, New Westminster, Calgary, Winnipeg, Lethbridge, Cranbrook and Kelowna, are heading to this farthest western point for the event.

Today from 5 o'clock to 7 o'clock hundreds of Chinese are expected to attend the big party which will be held at 556 Fisgard Street, while at 9 o'clock the annual convention when the many delegates from just as many Canadian towns, will convene.

Gaily illuminated by electric lights, decorated with paper festoons, sprigs of fir and colored paper panels the clubrooms present a picturesque aspect both outside and in. When one goes in, he is greeted by Tong Wen Chong, president, and Jung Mee Gam, secretary of the club.

Characteristic Oriental music adds atmosphere to the scene.

Install Girls' Lodge

Accompanied by several Grand Lodge officers, the Grand Mistress of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association visited Victoria yesterday afternoon and instituted a juvenile girls' lodge, a number of young people becoming charter members and showing much interest in the work. Officers and members are most enthusiastic over the prospects and are anxious to learn all they can about it, and great things are expected for this junior organization. During the installation the lodge-rooms were visited by senior members of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association and Loyalty Orange Association, all of whom manifested great interest in the organization.

CANADIAN AUTHORS

The November meeting of the Victoria and Islands Branch, Canadian Authors' Association, will be held on Thursday evening in the library of Victoria College, when the programme, under the convener ship of Mrs. J. R. Angus, will deal with "Craftsmanship, or Landing the Editorial Cheque." Mrs. C. d'A. Henderson will speak on "The Proper Preparation of a Manuscript," with examples; Major Alan Swinton will give an address on "The Formula of Modern Fiction"; Miss Tressa Pollock, of the Victoria Public Library, will speak on the "Advantages of the Library to Authors," followed by questions and discussions. This meeting should prove of practical interest to members of the writing profession. Any visiting members of the Canadian Authors' Association are invited to attend.

Varied Activities of Women

Society Notes From Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9.—The Vancouver Military Institute annual ball was one of the season's foremost affairs. Held at Hotel Vancouver on Friday night, the event was a brilliant success. The Lieutenant-Governor and Miss Helen Mackenzie were present, and His Honor, after the first dance, received officers commanding units and their wives and the executive of the military institute and their wives.

Hon. R. R. Bruce and Miss Mackenzie were entertained by Brigadier-General and Mrs. J. W. Stewart, and were guests at the dinner given by Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. A. T. MacLean prior to the ball. Many dinner parties were arranged, several taking place at Hotel Vancouver.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. MacLean's guests were, in addition to the gubernatorial party, Brig.-Gen. Sutherland Brown, C.M.G., D.S.O., Mrs. Brown, Col. J. L. R. Parsons, C.M.O., D.S.O., and Mrs. Parsons, Major-Gen. J. W. Stewart, C.B., C.M.G., and Mrs. Stewart.

Mayor Malkin and Miss Lila Malkin. Another dinner was arranged by Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Edward J. Ryan, whose guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gentles, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hodgson, Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd.

Farwell Parties. Many friends have given farwell parties in honor of Mrs. E. J. McFeely, who is leaving shortly for Europe. Mrs. H. T. Lockyer entertained at a bridge luncheon, when guests included: Mrs. M. Wilkinson, Mrs. John Rose, Mrs. E. F. Rait, Mrs. Herbert Fullerton, Mrs. Alexander MacDonald, Mrs. Misak Alvazoff, Mrs. Angus Stewart, Mrs. F. Bruce Bege, Mrs. Ernest Black, Mrs. Roderick Campbell, Mrs. Frank Harrison, Mrs. W. A. ### News of Tofino

The annual banquet of the Tofino Board of Trade was held in the Canadian Legion Hall. The menu was arranged by the wives of the members, and the hall and tables were beautifully decorated. The banquet was well attended by members and their lady guests, fifty-eight people being present. Speeches were made by Messrs. F. Garrard (president), J. P. Cooper, chairman and secretary, M. Macleod, G. Gibson, Dr. Dixon, Messdames Macleod and Arncliffe and others. Afterward the party adjourned to the Community Hall, where a dance was held, to which the public was invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall, who have been the guests of Mrs. J. P. Cooper, have left for Hong Kong.

Miss E. Garrard has returned from Port Alberni.

Mrs. George Nicholson and her son, Mr. Cecil ("Mickey") Nicholson, have left for a trip to New Zealand.

Marigold News. Mrs. Chambers, Orange Road, is visiting her son in Penticton, B.C.

Week of Prayer. The Week of Prayer will be observed by the Young Women's Christian Associations throughout the world, from November 10 to 16. In this connection a service will be held each afternoon next week in the clubroom of the Y.W.C.A., beginning at 3 o'clock. Those who will conduct the services are: Sunday, Rev. T. W. Gladstone, Monday, Mrs. J. Colaford, Presbyterian Church; Tuesday, Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw, Baptist Church; Wednesday, Mrs. B. McKillop, United Church; Thursday, Miss Turner, Miss Pooley and Miss Rye, Anglican Church; Friday, Mrs. R. S. Day, Reformed Episcopal Church.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to these services.

Weddings.

TODD—WENSLEY.

A quiet wedding took place at the minister's residence, Wilmington, California, on October 2, at 1:30 p.m., when Rev. Charles H. Swift united in marriage Evelyn Violet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Wensley, 812 Lamson, of Victoria, to Mr. David Todd, only son of Mr. and Mrs. David Todd, of Huntington Park, California. After the ceremony the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to Northern California, and will make their home in Wilmington. Among the gifts received was a handsome tray of cutlery from the Victoria staff of the Hudson's Bay Company, of which the bride has been a member for the past eight years.

HYGIENE SECTION HOLDS MEETING

Special Work of Esquimalt Women's Institute Reviewed by Officers of Council—Presentations

The third regular meeting of the child hygiene section of the Esquimalt Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the Parish Hall, Esquimalt. Mrs. W. H. Booth, president of the Women's Institutes in British Columbia, and president of the Esquimalt hygiene section, was in the chair. There was a good attendance, about forty-five being present. A silver tea and sale of home cooking, under the capable management of Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Acreman and Mrs. Garrett, also marked the occasion, the proceeds going towards the Christmas funds for the children.

Three new babies were welcomed into the circle, namely, Kenneth William Douglas, Jean Marie McGrath and Nancy Elizabeth Stewart. Mrs. Booth, the president, then introduced Mrs. C. P. Hill, regent of the Esquimalt Chapter of the I.O.D.E., who, on behalf of the hygiene section, presented each child with a silver spoon.

Mrs. Wise, president of the Esquimalt Women's Institute, was then called upon and with a few complimentary remarks presented each new baby with a musical rattle.

Mrs. Ricketts, who was the first president of the Esquimalt Hygiene Section, was next called upon. Mrs. Ricketts spoke briefly of the early work of the Institute, and said how pleased she was to see the great advancement made in this work, and wished each child and mother health and prosperity.

St. Joseph's Auxiliary Reports Heavy Season

The Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital held its regular monthly business meeting on Friday afternoon in the sewing-room at the hospital. Mrs. Frank Sehl, the president, in the chair. Mrs. Walter Fraser, the treasurer, read her report showing a balance of $1,363.34 in the bank.

Mrs. M. G. Henderson, convener of sewing, reported 1,579 pieces of work completed since last meeting. Roller towels 160, tray cloths 82, sheets 46, table covers 73, diapers 65, teapots holders 30, wrappers 29, gowns mended 12, jackets 1, gown 1, chest protectors 4, sponges 1,076. The forthcoming sale of work will be held in the nurses' new home on November 21 and all those wishing to send in donations for this bazaar are requested to kindly leave parcels at the main office of the hospital.

Lieutenant-Governor To Patronize Event

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Mackenzie have expressed their intention of being present at the annual tea of the Women's Canadian Club, to be held on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Empress Hotel.

In connection with this event a special programme has been arranged, the artists to be as follows: Piano solo, Miss Audrey Wood, L.A.B.; recitation, Master Ted Colquhoun, by pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Wilson, the Russian School of Dancing; vocal solo, Miss Dorothy Parsons.

Mrs. R. R. Taylor will be at the hotel at 2 p.m. to receive membership and reinstatement.

Hospital W.A. Will Hold Linen Shower

The Women's Auxiliary of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital will hold its annual linen shower in the blue room of the hospital on Thursday afternoon, in connection with the unveiling of the portraits of two benefactors of the institution, Mr. David Dolg and Mr. Greaves. Hon. R. R. Bruce and Mrs. Mackenzie have promised to be present at the unveiling ceremony. The Auxiliary is asking the public for their co-operation in furnishing the linen for the new nurses' home, which is to be opened shortly, and which will require a great additional supply owing to the largely increased accommodation. In addition to this, the usual supply of linen is required for the hospital, so the generosity of all friends is being appealed to with special emphasis this year.

To Place Wreath

Mrs. P. B. Scurrah and Mrs. A. Carmichael, president and secretary of the Women's Canadian Club, will represent the society at the Armistice Day services tomorrow morning at the Cenotaph, and will place a wreath on the Memorial.

A Sermon on Eyes

You remember the parable of the talents—how the one servant invested his property and brought it back to his master with interest and the other servant put his in a hole in the ground, where it accomplished no useful purpose.

Perhaps the greatest treasure with which you can be entrusted is your vision. It will pay you interest if you care for it properly with the modern Orthogon wide-vision lenses, which afford the same sharpness at the edge as at the centre. The text of this message and the test of your vision might be summed up in the words:

Real Meaning of Poppy Symbol and Aftermath of Armistice

By H. W. HART
Honorary Organizer, Armistice and Poppy Day Celebration

"Their name liveth for evermore!" is the inscription carved on the Cross of Sacrifice in the soldiers' section in Ross Bay Cemetery and on all similar crosses throughout the Dominion. And at each successive anniversary of the great day when the "cease fire" sounded along the battle front, and the guns were silenced, it is fitting that we should remember the perpetuation of our comrades' memory rests with us. Stone and bronze will not preserve that memory. Such memorials will, in time, become nothing more than objects of interest as specimens of art or lack of art. If the memory of the honored dead is to live it must be enshrined in our hearts and be handed down to coming generations, not as an abstract sentiment, but as a warm living thing which is part of our being.

Each year, at the Armistice anniversary, we honor the memory of the dead, not of great heroes, but of just plain men and women who answered the call of duty and followed the path until they reached the Journey's end.

In most cases they both knew and felt fear. They were not the mighty champions, fearless and undismayed, who met death with a smile, as some writers depict them. They did not want to die. There was a tremble at the knees, and a shake in the voice, and many a man went to his death praying that he might not falter, but that he might "pass out" true to his King and country—faithful unto death.

And because they carried on until the end they proved themselves to be worthy sons of a great Empire, which is first in all things that stand for good.

THOSE WHO REMAIN

Do we pay a real tribute to their memory or do we merely take part in a ceremony which means little more than the observance of a time-honored custom that brings a welcome holiday in its train? We cannot honor them by a brief, passing action, by a whole day or a whole week, if we shut them out of our thoughts for the rest of the year.

The dead died fighting side by side with men who returned broken in the fight, who are with us today, often hungry, often suffering pain, and what is far worse, the hurt which comes from neglect and indifference from those whom they served as faithfully and unflinchingly as did their comrades who rest in soldiers' graves.

Several who escaped death in battle have died at home from neglect. Anyone who has worked for his comrades could write reams on this subject, give proof of his statements, and reveal a condition which would destroy the peace of mind of any man or woman with a heart of any kind who has not been as faithful to the veteran in peace as to the soldier in war.

We want to save veterans from untimely deaths. We want to ease suffering bodies and we want to give them courage and hope for the future. Do not think that every war sufferer is pensioned. A comparatively few receive pensions generous enough to prevent suffering and anxiety and more receive nothing at all. Governmental injustice and public apathy have sent many veterans to their graves.

We are asking for $10,000, and in asking that we are seeking not merely dollars and cents, but life itself for the dying who will not be here next Armistice if assistance is denied them. The replica of the poppy from the fields of France and Flanders, the "flower of remembrance," makes its mute appeal. Will you hear it?

"WE ARE THE DEAD"

Li-Col. John McRae, just before his death, gave us a message, an order from the dead. It was not merely a poem, but the inspired thought which he received before he answered the "last call."

He said: "We are the dead," not "They are the dead." The foe to which he referred was not the enemy facing him on the battle front, but the evil which men do—greed, hatred, lust, persecution, want and every other foe of happiness. Neglect which has killed veterans, added to their sufferings, sapped hope and courage from their hearts, embittered their lives and turned their proven loyalty into hatred of their country and of their kind is the foe which the dead, through Col. McRae, order us to fight.

They threw the torch. Where is it? If it burned as brightly as when they held it, the foe would not be preying upon us now.

On Monday we will observe Armistice, but Col. McRae has said there would be no sleep for them if we broke faith. Poppies would grow, but they would be denied rest unless we kept the faith. Have we done so, or have we not?

At the memorial service we shall be brought into close communion with the dead that rest in the soil and in the deep. For a few brief moments the ranks will be intact. Eyes will not see the vast array of men who went but did not come back. But if you know you have stood by your comrades in peace as you did in war, that you did not desert them when you were re-established, you will know that you are again united in spirit and that in the great muster parade there are no gaps.

And if the great "Army behind the army," the people who, at home, served the troops so well in war, is prepared to remobilize to help the veterans in peace and redeem the promise made when the enemy was hammering on the gate, they, too, will enter into the spirit of Armistice and be one with the navy and army they served so well.

The dead cannot speak, but they have given us a message, positive and peremptory. Hear their words:

"Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders' Fields."

Reginald Werrenrath

Atwater Kent Hour

Classical selections and songs of vigor will be sung by Reginald Werrenrath, American baritone, when he appears as guest artist in the Atwater Kent programme to be broadcast through the N.B.C. coast-to-coast system tonight, at 6:15 o'clock, Pacific standard time. KOMO will broadcast this programme.

It is said that Werrenrath has done as much to foster the American song writer's cause as any other individual. Several years ago he announced that he wanted to sing songs by American composers. Since then an ever increasing number of compositions have come to him. Now he receives and reads nearly five thousand a year. When he comes across a song that promises merit he does his best to popularize it.

"Give me a man's song," Werrenrath says, and he will not sing a number that does not fit his voice. He prefers songs that are virile in nature, and "Mandala" has become a favorite of Werrenrath audiences.

WAGNER EXCERPT

IS COAST NOVELTY ON SYSTEM FRIDAY

An effective transcription of the lovely measures of Elsa's "Dream Music" from the first act of Wagner's opera "Lohengrin," adds distinction to the all-classical programme which will be heard when the Pacific Feature Hour is broadcast from the N.B.C. system San Francisco studios on Friday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, Pacific standard time. KOMO will broadcast the programme.

The complete programme follows:

Overture to "Barber of Seville" (Rossini).
Ballet music from "Rosamunde" (Schubert).
Elsa's Dream, from "Lohengrin" (Wagner).
Scherzo, from "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn).
Selections from "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni); Prelude; Siciliano.
"The Last Spring" (Grieg).
Dances from "The Bartered Bride" (Smetana).

Nachman Inner-Spring Mattress

We are often asked what is a spring-filled mattress? It is a mattress filled with springs, just soft enough to conform to the shape of the body, allowing the spine, which is the centre of the nervous system, to lie straight, which means utmost nerve rest as well as bodily comfort. These springs are covered top and bottom with a layer of springy white felt, the whole being covered in the very best of tickings with air vents all round the edge, making it extremely sanitary. Doctors are strongly recommending this mattress for nervous patients, or for those who have much nervous strain in their daily occupations. If you once try this sleep outfit you will never be without one again.

Is Your Wife your Business Manager?

If you can answer "yes" to that question, you are fortunate. But if you cannot answer "yes," you ought to spend three or four evenings thinking over your family's financial position in the event of your death. Then you should write instructions for your wife to follow regarding the conduct of the family's affairs, should necessity compel her to assume the burden.

When you have discovered what a task this is, it should lead your thoughts naturally to the idea of some financial provision which will insure her at least a certain definite income for life—one that cannot be seized for debt, nor the principal lost or dissipated. If you both live beyond 55, it can be arranged for the income to be paid to you jointly.

Rotary's Colorful Carnival Thrills 4,000 Spectators

Feats of Daring and Skilful Exhibitions of Art of Skating Accorded Ovation at Third Annual Ice Festival at Willows Arena—World Stars Participate in Excellent Entertainment

Brilliant Pageant of Rotary Typifies Peace Efforts

THE most spectacular and colorful ice carnival ever witnessed in Victoria was accorded a truly wonderful ovation last night by the 4,000 people who were thrilled by the feats of daring by skilful artists on the steel blades at the Victoria Rotary Club's third annual ice festival in the Willows Arena.

Enthusiastic patrons were fascinated by the acts presented by the Connaught Skating Club of Vancouver, "Powder and Patches," "Alice in Wonderland" and "The Russian Revellers," and the remarkable exhibitions of fancy skating given by Misses Maude and Cecil Eustace-Smith, representatives at the Olympic Games in 1928; Roy Shipstad and Margaret Bennett, skating stars of Minneapolis, and Verna Miles, Western queen of the steel blades.

Roy Shipstad electrified the vast audience by his performance in making five spins without stopping, making some eighty turns in all. This accomplishment probably elicited the greatest applause of any individual turn of the entertainment.

RIPLEY EXPLAINS

HERE'S the answer to two of Ripley's brain-twisters which appeared in yesterday's issue of The Colonist.

A glass ball is more elastic than a rubber ball. Contrary to common opinion glass is more elastic than rubber in a sense that it tends better to recover its original shape. This notwithstanding its brittleness.

It was a build a house 100 feet by 100 feet and have enough space left for a garden 100 feet long and 100 feet wide?

The house 100 feet by 100 feet built on a lot 100 feet square, leaving enough space for a garden 100 feet long and 100 feet wide will have the shape of a triangle and cover exactly half the lot.

Macedo, of Victoria, were liberally cheered for their uproariously funny turns.

It was a remarkably good show, with the various numbers being run off with rapidity. The music for the events was supplied by the Gresham Temple Shrine Band, directed by Mr. James M. Miller. The Rotary Club is to be congratulated upon the excellence and high standard of its carnival.

The Revellers' Club captured the Victoria Service Club's relay race, and will hold for the next twelve months the J. H. Beatty Challenge Cup, which has been held during the past two years by the Gyro organization.

THE PROGRAMME
The programme that follows gives best idea of the standard of entertainment that was rendered:

Victoria Rotary Club offered "A Pageant of Rotary," representing the fifty-four countries in Rotary. By the Victoria Skating Club members.

COMEDY EVENTS
The comedy side of the carnival was not overlooked. In fact, the amusing antics of local and outside comedians kept the assembly in roars of laughter. The team of Beekley and Russell, two of the best acrobatic and comedy skaters in the world, took the house down with their clever mirth-provoking acts, while Ralph Alcock and Charlie de

Rescuer's Widow Aided

IN 1928, Albert J. Cox lost his life in rescuing an eight-year-old boy who had fallen into a Detroit park pond. In recognition of his sacrifice the Carnegie Institute has awarded his widow, Mrs. Theda Cox, Toronto, a pension of $75 a month, plus $5 a month for her six-year-old daughter, Evelyn. The photograph reproduced above was taken before the Detroit episode and shows Mr. Cox in Royal Flying Corps uniform, with Mrs. Cox and their daughter.

A Hodge-Podge in a whirlwind of action never before equaled in Victoria's Arena. Cast: Miss A. Robinson, Mrs. A. E. Wark, Miss B. Cloetta, Miss S. E. Robinson, Mrs. W. E. Drake, Mrs. A. G. DesBrisay, Miss M. Nation, Miss G. Clardige, Mrs. Worsley, Miss M. Neill.

FANCY DRESS FETE
The fancy dress event presented some difficulty to those who had charge of the difficult task of judging, for a large majority of the competitors had left the ice before the judging could be completed, or the names of the winners secured.

The men's comic and original costumes were particularly striking, and the general effect was most colorful and effective. Following are the prize winners in the various classes:

Best dressed lady—Queen of Spades; second, Queen of Clubs; third, Butterfly.

Best dressed gentleman—First, Mexican; second, Custer; Douglas Stanger; third, Zulu. E. Goddard. Most originally dressed lady—First, Mrs. L. E. Walker; second and third, Peggy Harmon and Maxine Hutchinson, Two Little Girls in Blue.

Most originally dressed gentleman—Kingham-Gillespie Coal, C. de Macedo, with a clever costume; second, Lance Kirchoff, Holsum labels; third, A. R. Walker, Rotary costume; fourth, H. O. Minty, Radio Bird Rat.

Best comic lady—Lillias Turner.

Skyscraper Church Dedication Today In San Francisco

Formal dedication of the first church skyscraper in San Francisco and the bay region, the Temple Church, will take place today with three services, in which twenty-eight Methodist Episcopal Bishops of the United States are expected to take part.

The church within a hotel will rise nearly six stories in its auditorium, and will be a unit of a twenty-eight story edifice, the Hotel William Taylor, at Leavenworth and McAllister Streets. The hotel itself, which will be operated by the Woods-Drury Corporation, is tentatively scheduled to open January 15.

Cost of the structure itself without furnishings will run close to $2,000,000, and with the church furnishings and hotel furniture, it is expected to cost over $3,000,000.

THREE SERVICES PLANNED
Washington, D.C., senior bishop of the denomination, will preach the morning service at 11 o'clock. At 3 o'clock there will be a consecration service in charge of Bishop Charles Wesley Burns, resident bishop. At 7.30 o'clock this evening, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Chicago, formerly of San Francisco, will preach. The College of the Pacific's a capella choir from Stockton is scheduled to take part in all the services.

"I am a self-made man, sir; I began life as a barefoot boy."

"Well, I wasn't born with shoes on, either."

BRITANNIA POST HOLDS CONCERT

Comrades Combine to Make Armistice Day Programme Successful—To Meet Tomorrow

In memory of their fallen comrades, the Britannia Branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., held an Armistice Day concert at their headquarters on Broad Street last night. A large number of comrades took part in the concert, and the programme arranged by the various officers was thoroughly satisfactory to those present. To First Vice-President Thomas Dempster, Comrades Dave Sheret, chairman of the ways and means committee, and Jack Blair, goes much credit for the successful evening. This trio of ex-service men worked hard to make the evening's programme a happy one. The good results from the Poppy Day campaign also helped to make the concert successful.

All comrades are asked to assemble in front of the Veterans of France Clubrooms tomorrow morning at 10.30 o'clock, to march to the Cenotaph for the Armistice Day services. Sergeant-Major W. Llaney, who will be regimental sergeant-major in the parade, will be in charge.

Mother: "I hope he isn't one of those bold young men?"

Daughter: "Bold! When I said, 'If you wait until Christmas, perhaps I'll let you kiss me under the mistletoe,' he said he would wait."

Rhoda, A Red-Headed Girl

by Harry Kitchell Webster

CHAPTER VII

The first thought that flashed into Rhoda's mind when she saw the woman who was sitting at the speckled table was that there must be some mistake about it. Noting the black hat and the dark blue dress didn't altogether do away with it, either. She'd expected a very different-looking person. This woman looked—rather nice. She had delicate features and blue eyes, and you'd guess her age in the early twenties—well, twenty-five or not much over.

The instant she saw Rhoda she got up and came around the table to meet her. "I'd know you anywhere, Miss McFarland!" she said. "I was sure I wasn't mistaken. You're your father's daughter, all right."

There flashed into Rhoda's memory, something—Martin had said about the woman at the Alhambra—that she looked younger, somehow, than her voice sounded. It settled any possible doubt about her identity. "This woman's voice was hard and metallic, with the silver plating worn off in spots. She mustn't be thinking things like this! She must talk! She had a rehearsed line that would do. 'It's perfectly natural to meet someone who knew my father,' she said.

"Let's not try to talk," the woman suggested cozily, "until we've settled the important question of lunch." Her manners, Rhoda reflected, belonged with her voice rather than with her looks. She insisted on ordering an extravagant lunch, and the way she overrode Rhoda's protest was rather too self-satisfied. She wasn't merely vulgar, though. There was a lot more to her than that. Martin had said she was clever and dangerous and he was probably right.

"I guess the first thing you'll want to know," she began as soon as they were rid of the waiter. "Is how I found you. It was pure luck—if there is such a thing as luck, really. I saw you the other night at the Alhambra—that is, I thought it was you, only it seemed too good to be true. You were dancing with a gentleman I know, Mr. Max Lewis, and as soon as I got a chance I asked him about you. But it turned out he didn't know very much about you, himself. So I told him he'd got to find out for me, and yesterday he sent me your address. I don't know yet how he found it out."

Rhoda heard an edge in the hard voice that suggested she wanted to know. "Oh, Babe must have told him," she said. "He brought her home that night. We live together, you see."

Then, with a rush, she went on into another speech she'd rehearsed. It was better to get it over with.

"You must be wondering why I changed my name. You see, I wasn't of age when my father died. And I didn't want a lot of people bothering and interfering—telling me what I could do and what I couldn't. And I thought it would be easier to be let alone if I changed to Rhoda White. I could change back now, of course, only there isn't any reason why I should."

"Well, I'm glad it didn't bother you that I knew!" (She wasn't!) Her voice gave her away every time. It was flat now with disappointment over the loss of a weapon she'd counted on. "You won't mind, then, if I call you Miss McFarland?"

"Not a bit! My best friends know it's my real name. Only why don't you call me Rhoda?" She hoped her voice didn't give her away, too. The next moment she had to manage to call her companion Claire.

"I hope you've got time today for us to get started really making friends," Claire said when this basis had been established.

"I don't have to go back to the office at all this afternoon," Rhoda told her. It sounded like an answer.

"I'm a working girl, myself," said Claire, "or I have been until lately. Are you a stenographer? That's what I was. There may be ways that look easier, but in the long run they don't pay. Whereas now you take me, I was never out of a good job, and the last man I worked for gave me a tip on the stock market, that I made enough out of so that I didn't have to work any more—ever, unless I like. He owed it to me, all right. I'd made him more than that. I'd practically managed all his affairs for six years."

Rhoda's unasked question must have showed in her face. Claire took a deliberate drink of water and then went on as if she'd never stopped. "It was easy, though; didn't take near all my time and I used to do outside work—afternoons and sometimes evenings. That's how I happened to work for your father."

"Oh, I see," Rhoda agreed brightly. "I remember how often he used to go back to work evenings. I always hated to have him do it."

"You poor kid! You must have been lonesome!"

Rhoda felt her face burning as if it had been slapped. This woman's profession of sympathy was an insult she couldn't stand. She looked down at her plate and managed to swallow a few morsels of the food that was on it. When she thought she could command her voice she broached the main subject of their interview.

"You asked in your letter about a paper you had given him to keep for you."

Claire heaved a sigh. "Yes," she assented. "I suppose we'll have to talk about that and get it over. I hate to do it, but I've simply got to get that paper—if it's still in existence. You don't suppose it's been destroyed, do you?"

"I haven't destroyed any of my father's papers," Rhoda told her. "If yours was among them when he died it's still there."

"Well, I hope they're in a good safe place. The thing I gave him ought to be in the bank."

"They're not in the bank. There was a whole trunkful of them and I sealed it up just as it was. I know it's perfectly safe. If you'll tell me what your paper was like, I'll try to find it for you. It'll be in a sealed envelope, won't it, with your name written on it?"

"No," Claire said shortly. "I don't think it will. At least, it wasn't that way when I gave it to him—I wanted him to read it himself, you see."

The woman, despite her pretended hesitations and reluctance, was perfectly ready with her answer. Rhoda listened intently for a sen-ence or two and then more or less switched off her mind to other things. It was glaringly evident she was lying.

"I can see how badly you want it," she said, when the story was finished. "I'll try my best to find it for you."

"Will it take very long?" Claire asked. "Before you can start looking for it, I mean. Of course, you can't tell how long it will take you to find it."

"No," Rhoda assured her. "I'll go at it as soon as I get home this afternoon."

"That certainly is mighty sweet of you," Claire burst out, with a sudden stiltedness of warmth. "It seems a shame to make you so much trouble—I'll tell you what we might do," she added. "Let me go along with you and help you look. I could probably find it quicker than you could, because I know just what to look for."

The attempted casualness of the suggestion may have been a little overdone. Whether for that reason or another, there flashed into Rhoda's memory, as clearly as if she were hearing it over the radio, a question Martin had asked her that morning. "What does she want to do: go over your father's papers and pick out what she likes?" It was a moment before she could then it didn't sound quite right.

"Oh, that won't be necessary," she said. "I'm sure I can find it if it's there. And it won't be any trouble at all."

Claire forbore to press the matter, and indeed Rhoda couldn't be sure that she really showed any disappointment. Suddenly Claire looked at her watch and started a little. "Will you excuse me a moment, dearie?" she said. "I told a friend of mine that I didn't know whether I had a date for lunch today or not—I didn't, of course, until I knew whether you'd come. And I said I'd call them up before 1 o'clock and let them know."

PRESIDENT HOOVER SPEAKS ON MONDAY

"Naval Limitations" Subject at Armistice Day Celebration Tomorrow Evening

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—President Hoover is expected to take the entire nation into his confidence regarding the plans for international naval limitation in a speech to be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System, which he will deliver before the American Legion in Washington on Armistice Day night, Monday, November 11. On the tenth anniversary of the end of the World War ended, the President will speak before a huge commemorative meeting sponsored by the veterans in the Washington Auditorium, and because of the extraordinary timeliness of his remarks, it has been arranged to broadcast the speech to all parts of the United States, Canada, and, by means of short wave transmitters, even to the European nations involved in the question of naval disarmament. The broadcast program will begin at 8:15, Pacific standard time, but it is not expected that the President will begin his remarks until half an hour later.

The programme of the American Legion's Armistice Day commemorative meeting will be presided over by Colonel Paul V. McNutt, past commander of the legion, in the role of master of ceremonies, and another legionnaire on the speaking programme will be Major O. L. Bodenhamer, the recently-elected national commander. The appearance of General John J. Pershing is contingent upon his return from Paris.

Colonel John Thomas Taylor, in charge of the Armistice Day celebration, states that 12,000 individual legion posts (composed of ex-service men) and 6,000 legion auxiliary posts (composed of ex-service women) have arranged to hold meetings concurrent with the Washington function, indicating that the radio attendance from this source will exceed one million. The throngs inside of the auditorium will be augmented by a monster overflow meeting outside the building, to whom the speeches will be relayed by public address systems. Following immediately upon the heels of Ramsay MacDonald's "peace visit" to this country and preceding by fully two months the impending Five Power Conference called for London in January, it is said that President Hoover will seize the Armistice Day celebration as a highly suitable occasion for discussing what now impends in the field of naval disarmament. Barring the broad observations on naval limitation and peace, which were contained in the joint statement issued by Prime Minister MacDonald and President Hoover on the eve of the British statesman's departure from Washington, nothing definite about their "conversations" has been forthcoming. The world may depend upon some concrete revelations in the speech of the President in this broadcast.

RADIO IS USED TO KILL INSECT PESTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Bug-killing radio transmitters, which shoot radio impulses into fruit trees and in some strange way electrocute, stun or otherwise exterminate the pests, must stand trial before the Federal Radio Commission. In the bug-killing line, according to its owners, these machines have been the scene of success. But they are actually radio-transmitting stations, just like any other device which broadcasts radio signals, and thus are capable of causing endless interference to regular reception if used in large numbers.

PROTESTS FOLLOW USE

In the orchards of Washington state, where the bug killers have been used for more than a year, there have been occasional complaints about interference, but whether these are traceable to the mysterious emissions of the machines remains to be ascertained. The commission has ordered the owners of the bug killers, the Electro-Spray Corporation, Spokane, to appear at a hearing in Washington in connection with applications for "renewal of station licences." The real reason behind the order is that just a month back the commission issued a regulation prohibiting the use of "spark" transmitters as against tube transmitters, on land, and restricting their operations only to ships.

Spark transmitters, it is explained, are those which will emit sparks to damped waves, whereas the tube transmitter gives out an undamped wave. The spark is the element which causes the interference, because it covers a broad area in the ether and is not easily controlled. But, in the case of the bug machines, it's the spark that spreads the death among the pests and it is doubtful whether the tube transmitter could carry on the anti-bug warfare.

BURNED WHILE FILLING TANK

MRS. JAMES CAMPBELL, OF COOMBS, IN NANAIMO HOSPITAL

Flame of Gasoline Lamp Responsible for Accident, Causing Severe Injuries

NANAIMO, Nov. 9.—A narrow escape from death was had by Mrs. James Campbell, of Coombs, who was brought to Nanaimo Hospital last evening suffering from burns which she received while filling a tank of a truck, while in close proximity of a gasoline lamp.

It seems that Mrs. Campbell had volunteered to fill her husband's truck with gas while he was in the home. To aid her in the work she used a gasoline lamp, and in some way or other the flame from the lamp ignited the gasoline flowing into the tank, and in consequence Mrs. Campbell was severely burned. Her screams brought her husband and daughter to the rescue, and with the aid of neighbors, she was rushed to the P. J. Jenkins' ambulance. From latest reports she is progressing as favorably as can be expected.

HORTICULTURAL PRIZES AWARDED

Presented at Meeting of North Saanich Society—Rev. R. Connell Gives Address

The monthly meeting of the North Saanich Horticultural Society was held in the Wesley Hall on Thursday evening. The president, Mr. L. E. Taylor, occupied the chair and opened the meeting, at which there was a splendid attendance of members. The secretary, Mrs. E. L. Hammond, read the minutes of the previous meeting which were adopted and other reports being presented and various business matters dealt with, the president introduced Rev. Robert Connell, who was the speaker for the evening.

Mr. Connell dealt for some length on his subject, "Fashions in Flowers," giving some ideas of the ways in which plants modify their flowering parts and with what purpose they do so. He also pointed out the great effect that insects have in the changing of a plant and flower through pollination. At the close of his interesting address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Connell. Prizes for the monthly competition were awarded as follows: Best of chrysanthemums, not more than ten stems, first, Mrs. J. J. White; second, Mrs. J. T. Harrison; third, H. L. Ricketts; best five yellow onions, first, J. A. Nunn; second, H. L. Ricketts; Mr. J. A. Nunn donated three special prizes for the three best plants grown by the children competing in the Junior garden contest. These prizes were awarded to first, Florence Nunn; second, Charlie Samsbury; third, Frank Lines.

It was decided that the subjects for the monthly competition in December would be a collection of colored leaves and berries, and in the vegetables, two cabbages; other variety than savoy.

Mr. J. A. Nunn, who was in charge of the Junior garden contest, reported that it has been such a great success that further effort should be put forward to stimulate interest and encourage more children to enter next year. He suggested that the children taking part in the contest should write an essay for the next meeting, entitled "My Garden, and What I Learned Through the Competition." Further particulars contestants should get in touch with Mr. Nunn.

No further business offering, the meeting adjourned until Thursday, December 5.

Nanaimo Obituary

NANAIMO, Nov. 9.—Yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the funeral took place of Mrs. John Hodgson from the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Blackburn, 220 Kennedy Street, to the family plot, Nanaimo Cemetery, by F. W. Anderson conducted the services at the home and graveside, amidst a large attendance of relatives and friends of the deceased. The following were the pallbearers: Messrs. H. Allen, A. Niven, J. Graham, E. Devlin, J. Robertson and M. Carroll. Many beautiful floral tributes were received.

Word was received in the city yesterday of the death of Mrs. Mary Lowther in Birmingham, Alabama. The late Mrs. Lowther was a resident of Nanaimo for twenty-one years, and for a good many years conducted a boarding house on Nicol Street. Deceased was a native of Ireland, aged sixty-five years and was visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Brown, when she was stricken with illness which caused her death.

She is survived by one son, William, Nanaimo; five daughters, Mrs. William Gillies and Mrs. A. Churchill, of Nanaimo; Mrs. Dan Beaton, Vancouver; Mrs. William Peterson, Los Angeles; and Mrs. George Brown, Birmingham, Alabama.

The remains will be shipped to Nanaimo for interment in the family plot.

A merry party was going on in one of the rooms of a large London hotel when the festivities were interrupted by an attendant, who said: "Gentlemen, I have been sent to ask you to make less noise. The gentleman in the next room says he can't read."

Col. McAlpine, Plane and Members of Party

COLONEL McAlpine and his seven companions, lost in the Arctic for over eight weeks, and for whom a continent-wide search has been waged, have been found safe and well, north of Bathurst Inlet, within the Arctic Circle. The photographs here show: Left, one of the lost planes, a Fokker, taken on the ice at Lac du Bonnet, forty-five miles east of Winnipeg, before the flight. Right shows Colonel McAlpine coming ashore at Tavane base, on Hudson Bay. This photograph was taken some time ago. Lower left, Alec J. Milne, mechanic member of the party, with his wife and small son. Both wife and son have been outstandingly optimistic about the ultimate ability of the lost party to pull through. Lower right, Capt. ### ARCTIC TERN MAKES TRIP OF 11,000 MILES

Annual Migration of This Species of Bird Passes From Northern Ocean to Antarctic

OTHER MIGRATIONS GO EAST AND WEST

The longest regular migration is that of the Arctic tern, which passes annually from Arctic to Antarctic waters, a distance of 11,000 miles. That of the Wilson's petrel, however, is nearly as long, says Nature Magazine, as it breeds on Antarctic islands during our winter, and spends its summer in the North Atlantic, ranging north to Labrador.

Regular migration is seasonal, as a rule, and in New England, as in the rest of North America, the general tendency is northward in Spring and southward in Autumn. Nevertheless, those who, with a telescope, have watched the night migrants crossing the disc of the full moon have noted that the lines of flight are not parallel, but cross one another, some veering far toward the East and some toward the West.

SOME MAKE CIRCLE TRIP

Some birds, like the golden plover, go to New England in Autumn from far Northern and Northwestern Canada, but return in Spring by way of the Mississippi Valley region. Some, like the canvasback duck, come almost directly east from the Great Plains.

An evening grosbeak bird, a purple finch, banded in Autumn in Michigan, were taken later in Massachusetts. A robin banded in New England was taken in the Winter in Kentucky. Some black-crowned night herons, banded as fledglings on Cape Cod, were taken in the following Autumn in Maine, and several in Quebec, and one in New Brunswick, nearly 500 miles north of the place where it was banded. Later others were taken, one in

Suggestion Made For Silent Prayer On Armistice Day

HOW do people occupy the sacred two-minute silence on November 11? the Dean of Columbia asks in today's issue of The Cathedral Leaflet.

As an aid to any who are ready to receive suggestions for a profitable use of the period, the Dean proposes that the following prayers might be said silently:

"O God, bless all who died, and all who suffered in the Great War." (To be said three times.)

"O God, teach us to abolish war through brotherhood." (Three times.)

"Our Father, who art in Heaven, etc."

ROCKGAS USED IN STEEL WORK

REPAIR OF DAMAGED VESSELS HAS PROVIDED MEANS FOR SUCCESSFUL TEST

School Laboratories Are Applying It for Use With Buntzen Burners

The use of Rock gas in steel-cutting operations has been tested here recently with success as a result of the necessary repair work done on damaged vessels by Yarrows Limited. It was used in connection with the replacement of plates on the Empress of Canada and again in the work now in progress on the Princess Victoria, fitting her for automobile traffic and on the repairs to the Princess Marguerite.

The process has been applied in connection with two well-known yachts with equal satisfaction.

The operators of the patent rights also have found a demand in the use of the gas for buntzen burners in laboratory work in the schools, and an increasing demand in private houses. Its usefulness in illumination work in the rural portion of the island, where coal and water-gas facilities are nonexistent, is also being appreciated, it is reported.

NATIONAL PARK AT LONG BEACH IS SUGGESTED

Part of Clayoquot Land District Recommended to Canadian National Parks Association for Reserve

WOULD BE REACHED BY PROPOSED ROAD

The Canadian National Parks Association has before its executive a proposal to secure the allocation of Long Beach as a national park. This project links up with the proposed road to open the Clayoquot land district to development, joining up the existing road at Spruce Lake to that recently constructed from Uclulet to Toftino, details of which appeared in Saturday's issue of The Colonist.

The association has had the matter formally before it in the form of a recommendation from the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, supported in person at the January meeting in Vancouver by a statement from Mr. L. A. Hanna, M.P.P.

The area which has been suggested to be set aside is about eighteen miles by fifteen miles and at the time was considered somewhat small for a national park, except in relation to Strathcona Park, and also the Forbidden Plateau, which all adjoin and would form a reserve across the centre of Vancouver Island. In view of Strathcona Park being provincial property and the status of the Forbidden Plateau being in railway lands, the association decided to get more data before going on record on the subject.

How the establishment of a reserve for park purposes would affect mineral and other industrial development has to be determined, because those who know the area through which the proposed highway would run confidently expect the location of minerals, apart from the known placer properties of the black sands of the Pacific seaboard.

First Armistice Day—Light and Shadow at Mons, Nov. 11, 1918

By H. WYNDHAM THOMAS

A whistle, "Stand down," a bewilderment look one to another, a belated shot—then silence. Silence after four years of unending racket.

That, briefly, is a picture of the armistice in France, the armistice which ended the Great War and brought to a close four years of the bloodiest fighting in the world's history, when Britain, and Britain's Dominions were faced with extinction or endless glory.

All along the four hundred miles of front, where for over four years noise and bloodshed, life and dirt, had reigned undisputed, men looked at each other, then, realizing that the war had indeed ended, peered fearfully over parapets to look at ground which hitherto had been forbidden territory, the mere surveying of which might mean the sudden end of all things terrestrial.

Could it be true? Was it possible that phrase, "The end of the war," at last had meaning? Some of the bolder spirits were already testing it, scrambling out of gun pits, and exploring with curious eyes ground over which a few minutes before it had been death to look.

Gradually the truth sank in. The war was over. Discipline, though not abolished, was temporarily relaxed, and men might once more conduct themselves as individuals instead of cogs in a huge destructive machine.

Mons, two miles away, already in the hands of our infantry, with its wine, women, freedom, called as a fitting place to celebrate the culmination of the four-year struggle. Already, for the first time since the grey-clad swarms swept down from the German frontiers, lights were beginning to gleam in the city.

Lights, where for more than four years, darkness had been the rule, imposed upon the subdued population by their conquerors.

Only dimly were the troops beginning to realize the welcome awaiting them, the honor which the people of Mons were waiting to give to those they acclaimed as their deliverers. There is a special edition of the Mons paper dedicated to the Canadians, a special medal awarded by the city to all the troops partaking in its freeing.

Mons made the 1918 equivalent of "Whoopie" that day. True it is that the rejoicings were tinged here and there with sadness. That was inevitable. So much misery had been endured, so many who might have been there to celebrate were missing; but the war was over, the armistice had come, and the city was "en fête."

Troops could hardly move a yard without being embraced by both male and female.

An inspection of the store windows was enlightening. Shoes with patent leather bases (which one strongly suspected were made of cardboard), and the uppers made of woven paper so much used by the Germans in place of leather, were tickled 400 marks a pair. Socks made of wood fibre (one could almost see the splinters sticking out of them) were priced at sixty marks, and in all the stores similar substitutes were evident, equally high priced. Possibly the most noticeable feature was the paucity of stock in all the stores.

Every twenty or thirty yards along the banks of the canal could be seen women digging up household treasures buried in the early days of the war. Brass lamps (the pride of every middle class Belgian and French household), bottles of wine, silverware and cutlery in unbelievable quantities, even bicycles were unearthed and tenderly wiped off and renovated after their long interment. Time after time during the four years of conflict the German authorities had requisitioned all metal, and particularly bicycles, for the use of their soldiers. In the village of Escaudain the women had courageously taken their absent husbands' bicycles into their backyards at night after one such requisition, and hacked them to pieces rather than turn them over to the detested Boche. Possibly a useless gesture, but rather a fine one. It cost the village half a million marks.

A Canadian sergeant applied for a billet at a house on the Avenue de Bertalmon. The householder, a dear old lady of over sixty, acceded in a twinkling, but flustered English, "I am happy to have a Canadian in my house." She also apologized for the windows in the bedroom having been broken by shellfire, hardly realizing that her guest had spent the last four years sleeping outdoors in the mud. Further attempts at conversation revealed that the lady would rather write English than speak it, and it developed that in 1914, when the British first met the enemy at Mons, the inhabitants had been so struck with the bearing of the British troops that a number of them decided to learn English in order that "when they returned, and we never doubted that they would return someday, we might be able to welcome them in their own language." In order to perfect themselves in the English language a number of the ladies of Mons had gathered together all English books they could find, at a time when it meant a stiff fine and possible imprisonment to be caught with one in the house, and the lady above mentioned had read over four hundred English books with no other help than a French-English dictionary.

The keeper of an estaminet grew quite eloquent when questioned as to the first meeting between the British and Germans in 1914. He pointed out the exact tree on the Avenue behind which one of our machine guns had gone into action as the enemy cavalry came riding down the avenue. With excusable pride he exhibited a British machine gun bullet from that same gun, which had smashed through a window and embedded itself in the bar. He had built a small glass over it, and related with true Gallic loquacity how the Germans had repeatedly, throughout their occupation of the city tried to force him to remove it.

The owner of a large house in the city, tried to force him to remove it. The owner of a large house in the city had an interesting story to tell of the occupation of his house as headquarters for one of the numerous German princes. He had in one of his living rooms a fireplace surrounded by woodwork carved by the master sculptor, Rodin. This apparently aroused the curiosity of His Highness, and the whole fireplace and mantelpiece was dismantled and shipped into Germany. The joke lies in the fact that the walls of the room were hung in real Gobelin tapestry, priceless, the owner maintained, which the temporary occupants either overlooked or underestimated.

On all sides the inhabitants were eager to tell of the irritating restrictions to which they had had to submit during the hostile occupation. One woman had a story of three days' imprisonment for crossing the road from a neighbor's house after 8 o'clock at night. The most amusing tale, however, was that of the chickens and the eggs. It seems that if a man kept chickens, a detail of a German noncommissioned officer and two privates would call on him with true Teutonic gravity, and solemnly enter on endless forms the six, breed, age, etc., of his flock. In due course, notice arrived that he was expected to supply the German Red Cross with a certain number of eggs daily. No allowance was made for the season of the year or the hen's individual idiosyncrasies, and one got a mental picture of the owner sitting up with a lantern until all hours of the morning when short of his quotas, abjuring his hens to do their best.

All this may seem to have little to do with the Armistice, but it is all part of the kaleidoscopic impressions that the war of those first few days of peace.

There was the sterner part, of course. No one who was there will ever forget the funeral of the seven or eight Canadians killed in the actual retaking of the city on the morning of November 11. It seemed as if all Mons, and a large part of the Canadian corps was gathered in the Grand Place as the cortege passed through. The bells in the carillon perched on the hill which gives the city its name were tolling in a requiem. Gradually their mellow notes died down, until, so softly that the ear could at first scarce distinguish the tune, they changed into the immortal "Tipperary," retained in the memory of the musician since those days in 1914, when British troops had sung it as they swung down the avenues of Mons to meet the enemy for the first time. Then they changed again, and many strong men who had come untouched and hardened by their experiences in the previous four years, swallowed hard at the lump in their

Music While You Sleep

The Radio Pillow Has a Headphone So Placed That the Sleeper Can Put His Ear Directly Against It.

A PILLOW radio receiver is the clever invention of James H. Neal, of Cambridge, Mass. It is meant particularly for use by sick persons, at home or in hospitals, who, provided with this contrivance, can comfortably listen to whatever comes over the "wireless," or be lulled to sleep by music.

The receiving apparatus, which may be a crystal set, is contained within the pillow, with a headphone so located beneath the pillowcase that the ear of the occupant of the bed can be placed directly against it.

The apparatus inside the pillow is provided with antenna and ground leads which can be drawn out of the pillow when the contrivance is to be used, or can be wound up on spring-actuated reels within the pillow when it is desired to disconnect them. Thus the pillow, with its receiving set, may be removed from the bed when the latter is to be made up.

Provision is made for tuning the apparatus from outside the pillow. Crystal sets are so cheap that any hospital can afford to provide for its patients a large number of such radio pillows. But the latter are obviously utilizable by well persons resting on a sofa or couch.

On all sides the inhabitants were eager to tell of the irritating restrictions to which they had had to submit during the hostile occupation. One woman had a story of three days' imprisonment for crossing the road from a neighbor's house after 8 o'clock at night. The most amusing tale, however, was that of the chickens and the eggs. Adrien Rey-Gollet, officer of the Legion of Honor, decorated with the Croix de Guerre and inspector-general of physical education for the schools of Paris, is a moving spirit in the direction of those colonies. It is under his inspiration, and that of Henri Pate, Under-Secretary of State for Education, that the mountain colonies and seashore colonies have been brought together in a common effort to supply French children with two or three months of the year in the open air.

But the most significant effort of these practical visionaries is to supplant the old classical type of indoor school by the school of the mountain and the sea.

BROKER'S OFFICE ON CUNARD LINER

New York Financial House Installs Up-to-Date Office on the Berengaria

New facilities which enable passengers to deal in securities and commodities on their voyage across the Atlantic, have just been installed aboard the giant Cunard liner Berengaria, it was learned from local offices here.

Providing full brokerage service, one of the most prominent financial houses in New York, members of the New York Stock Exchange and other exchanges, has opened a self-going office on the mammoth ship. A big volume of business is already reported.

This service makes possible for passengers continuous trading in securities and constant contact with the financial markets. Instant communication between the brokerage company's head office in New York and the Berengaria is maintained through the powerful radio stations of the Radiomarine Corporation of America. Quotations of the most active stocks, in code, to insure secrecy for the whole operation, are forwarded direct to the liner as they appear on the tape in New York and require quotations either in stocks or commodities can be obtained in a very short time.

In addition to the manager of the office, two radio operators and a quotation boy are on duty. Equipment includes a regular quotation board. Operations are handled by specially-installed short-wave transmitters and receivers.

RADIO-LECTRIC HAS NEW HOME

EXPANSION OF BUSINESS CAUSES REMOVAL OF STORE TO CASTLE BLOCK

Attractive Display Made of Number of Leading Makes in Beautifully Fitted Rooms

Another proof of the steady advance made by the radio industry in Victoria is the move, recently made by the enterprising firm of The Radio-Lectric Ltd., late of 619 View Street, now occupying splendid quarters at 635 Fort Street.

Just a year ago last March, Mr. Louis Sampson and Mr. Walter Smith commenced business under the present name at 619 View Street, in a portion of the C. H. Smith & Co. art store. The rapid increase of business soon suggested the opening of the Radio-Lectric Studio at 920 Heywood Avenue. But with a still greater expansion the need of one central location was made imperative and the move to the present position was made.

In the Castle Block, just four doors west of Terry's, the new store is both commodious and beautifully fitted. An attractive display is made of the following sets: Stewart-Warner, Brunswick, Westinghouse, Radiola, Lyric, Fada and Marconi. Home demonstrations may be arranged for any of these sets. In addition to the competent staff of trained electricians, Mr. Louis Sampson acts as president, Mr. Walton Smith as secretary-treasurer, with Mr. J. B. Morgan and Mr. Ernest Dyson on the special sales staff.

As exclusive radio dealers, the firm is in a position to offer adequate servicing on all sets. Taste and experience are both shown in the fitting and arrangement of this fully equipped establishment. No check was experienced during the move, which was made by night.

Some folks take pain for granted.

They let a cold "run its course."

They wait for their headaches to "wear off."

If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning.

Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Aspirin tablets always offer immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many proven uses of Aspirin. Aspirin is safe. Always the same. All drug stores with complete directions.

Feeling Blue?

POOR HEALTH MAY BE THE CAUSE

Popular songs attribute "the blues" to heart trouble. Yet thousands are blue and depressed solely because constipation is undermining their health.

This costliest curse of modern life is needless. Except in rarest cases, it can be completely corrected, say health authorities, by adding a "roughage ration" to the diet. And all authorities agree upon the unequalled laxative value of bran—in its natural form.

Quaker Tillson's natural Bran is pure bran, neither cooked, nor treated in any way that would weaken its laxative qualities. Because it is made from choice Ontario wheat only, it is light and ideal for baking.

Treat the family to muffins made with Quaker Tillson's natural Bran. One treat and then they'll want bran muffins at every meal. They'll welcome a good health habit so pleasant.

Now offered in the new, handy package with simple recipes for delicious bran dishes enclosed.

Beauty and Comfort in Modernizing

Two Factors Are Present In Reconditioning House

Bringing Old Home Up to Date Demands as Essentials That Added Attractiveness and Efficiency Be Fully Considered

The home-owner who decides to modernize his home has in his mind two important factors that must enter into every modernizing project. Both the interior and exterior appearance of his home must be beautiful, and at the same time comfortable. Comfort and beauty are essential if the home is to meet in the highest degree the requirements of the family. If one or both are absent the sense of completeness is not satisfied.

A beautiful home appeals to the artistic appreciation of the family. It reflects suitably the taste and refinement and good breeding of the household. The judgment of the neighbors about the occupants of the house is based largely on the exterior lines of the building and the character of the furnishings of the interior.

The family that is satisfied to live in an ugly, boxlike house with the antiquated Victorian lines that were the style years ago, that looked down at once as lacking in good taste, commonplace surroundings are generally evidence of similar natures.

MODERN LINES
If the home has modern lines and an up-to-date appearance, the craving of the family for beautiful surroundings is, to a large extent, gratified. When this desire for the beautiful is met by artistic fixtures, tastefully decorated room, well-arranged furniture and all the modern touches that are in vogue today, this desire is largely met. Not only are the requirements of the family met but also the judgment of outsiders vindicated. The home becomes a true expression of the family standing.

Important as is beauty to the home owner and his family, the desire of bodily comforts is equally great. When the home is lacking in those things that cater to the physical well-being of the individual, the home does not have that lure that is always associated with one word. The uncomfortable home is a mere sleeping and eating place—a place to be avoided rather than sought. To the housewife who is compelled to labor with makeshift household equipment and a dearth of modern conveniences, the old-fashioned house has little appeal. It becomes a sort of unofficial prison to which she is sentenced by circumstances.

CENTRE OF HOME LIFE
But with modernization the home takes on a compelling attraction. It becomes a delightful centre of home activities and a pleasant place to be. Outside amusements do not assume the importance of previous days but become diversions that serve to emphasize the allurements of the home.

Homes of beauty and comfort are easily acquired. The price for a pleasant place to live is low. The cost of modernization from a dollars and cents standpoint averages over a term of years the monthly cost of modernizing the dwelling is decidedly less than the outlay in cash that goes with living in antiquated houses.

If you live in a home that is lacking in beauty and comfort, the wise thing to do is to investigate the results that come with modernization. Find out for yourself what changes are needed to make your home bright and cheerful and a real place to live. Estimate the cost of these changes and weigh carefully the cash outlay against the increase in mental satisfaction that comes with the new lines and attractive fixtures and the bodily comforts that also result. You will not doubt find that in the long run the investment of money in the modernized house will be one that pays permanent returns in renewed home life.

Vestibule Necessary To Prevent Tracking Of Dirt Into House

In recent years there has been a tendency to eliminate the vestibule in the home. But the vestibule is a convenience of real, practical utility that should not be overlooked. One should be included if possible. Here may be stored overcoats, raincoats, the umbrellas that are necessities during a part of the year. The vestibule saves the tracking of dirt into the interior—common practice if no place is provided for storage of rubbers and overcoats. The vestibule should be more than a double entry. Some of the newly modernized homes are making the vestibule large enough to contain a low built-in hall seat with a hinged top opening on a convenient receptacle for holding the rubbers, overcoats, and all the incidentals that might be stored in an entryway. An umbrella stand, a wire hall mat, and a row of hooks upon which hats and coats may be hung complete the vestibule.

EXTERIOR CHANGES IMPARTS SPIRIT

New Facade Adds Note of Distinction to Former Commonplace Appearance of Home

The average person would be very well satisfied to live in the residence illustrated. It is a solid, substantial appearing dwelling with a comfortable air of dignity and worth. To the casual passer-by it is one of the better homes on the street.

This residence was built some ten or fifteen years ago when deep roomy open porches were still in vogue. It served its purpose admirably during the hot summer months when the family gathered here to enjoy the shade and to catch the passing breeze.

But today when automobiles are a common family possession, the members of the household prefer to jump into the car and go for a nice long ride when they endeavor to cool themselves. The big porch does not serve its usefulness of generations and is often deserted.

Times have changed and the porch in the opinion of many builders will soon be classified as obsolete.

During the cooler months of the year the family remain indoors and again the big porch is not used. It remains idle, gathering stray leaves and flying dust—always in constant need of cleaning.

Deep porches have another objection. Their broad roof casts deep shadows within the house making the rooms off the porch dark and gloomy.

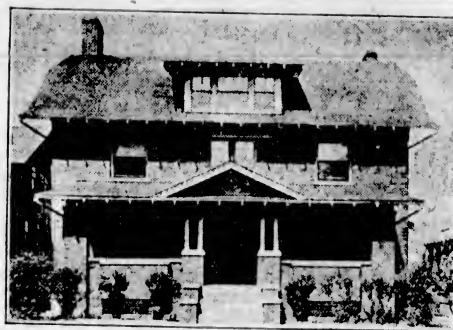

When the owner of this handsome, well-kept house decided to improve his property, his first thought was to the porch. It was rapidly becoming useless and in his judgment a liability rather than an asset. So it was discarded in favor of the porch shown in the large illustration at the left.

This new porch gives the residence a delightful touch. The heavy spirit is gone. A new sense of welcome radiates from the snow-white pillars, the semi-circular steps and the wide colonial door. The grilled railing over the porch and across the sills of the two broad windows at the front add a touch of distinction to the facade.

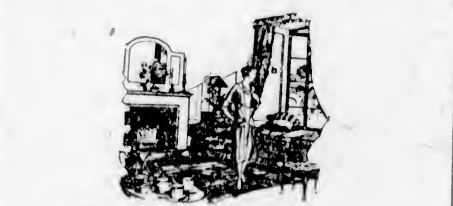

Overhead, the wide dormer with its three windows has been removed leaving the roof lines plain. The slate roof now has a clear sweep and the course of the eye as it glances over this part of the structure is not impeded by extraneous lines.

Waxed Floor Still High in Popularity

Floors have emerged from beneath the florid and floral carpets of the gay nineties. Unhidden, in the smartest homes the hardwood floors gleam with a soft, mellow lustre, imparting tone and richness to every room. The use of wax on hardwood is considered by many housewives to be the most practicable method of treating the wood. Waxed floors remain free from scars and scuffs as though completely covered. The wax forms a tough flexible film that clings to hardwood and rebuffs dirt and grime.

The Mineral Resources of Vancouver Island

Article III
By REECE H. HAGUE

Four miles along the road leading from June Landing to the Coast Copper property stands a lone cabin, which is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Kinsey. If you happen to stop at the cabin, however, the chances are that you will not find Mr. Kinsey at home, for in company with his partner, W. D. Kinsey, he is working at their mine, which is situated near the top of a mountain immediately at the rear of the cabin.

For several years, both before and after its acquisition by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, Mr. Kinsey was the superintendent of the Coast Copper property, and prior to that had held a number of responsible positions with mining companies both in Canada and the United States.

When he was with the Coast Copper Company, two of Mr. Kinsey's employees brought him samples of silver-lead ore from a mountain near Alice Lake and informed him that they had staked claims. Later these claims were allowed to lapse, and when he retired from the employment of the Consolidated Mr. Kinsey told Mr. Kinsey of them and they decided to relocate them.

PERSEVERANCE REWARDED
Two years passed before the partners succeeded in locating the vein from which the samples, which had first attracted Mr. Kinsey's attention, had come, but when it was eventually found they staked seven claims in their own names and those of their wives, formed a company called the Alice Lake Mining Company, and distributed the stock among themselves. Since work on the property has revealed a promising ore body, Messrs. Kinsey and Kinsey have received offers for an interest in their property, but they commenced to mine it themselves and intend to continue to do so. Mr. Kinsey is in the happy position of being a mining engineer who is at liberty to work out his own theories on his own property without interference from boards of directors or stockholders, for his wife and the Kinseys have implicit faith in his ability to make a mine out of the Alice Lake property.

In the early stages of development, Messrs. Kinsey and Kinsey carried out a considerable amount of work in open cuts, shallow shafts and trenches on the most promising vein on the property. They then decided to run a crosscut tunnel into the mountain at a lower level than the vein exposure, but after they had driven it 100 feet no ore was encountered.

This did not discourage the partners, who merely decided to abandon that tunnel and drive a new one on the vein. As they proceeded with this tunnel they were rewarded by finding the vein widening and values improving.

I visited Messrs. Kinsey and Kinsey on their property last Summer, at which time the new tunnel had been driven forty feet and the vein had widened to over three feet. Some spectacular ore was being taken out and the last samples taken from right across the face had averaged $14 to gold, sixteen ounces in silver, 24 per cent lead and 8 per cent zinc to the ton.

GOOD SHIPPING GRADE ORE

A quantity of ore of this grade was on the dump and there is no reason why good shipping grade ore cannot be hand-sorted and shipped, making the property self-supporting and supplying funds for machinery. The property is only four miles from tidewater and ore could be transported to the June Landing road by means of a light tramway.

Mr. Kinsey informed me that it was the intention of his partner and himself to continue hand drilling the tunnel for a further twenty feet, and if the vein remained as strong as appeared probable samples of ore would be sent to Ottawa to obtain particulars of the way in which it could best be treated. Everything that is satisfactory, a compressor will be installed to facilitate mining and the ore shipped to a smelter.

With the erection of a smelter on the Coast, several properties in the present not being worked should be able to produce ore profitably. Included among the first party of settlers at Quatsino in 1894 were several men who had had mining experience in the United States, from whence these settlers had come. In 1897 several of them embarked on a prospecting expedition and located a claim known as the Mountain King on the southeast arm of Quatsino Sound. Mr. Ed. Evensen, the present mining recorder at Quatsino, is the only survivor of this party, but Mr. George Nordstrom, whose father was also among the prospectors, and who himself accompanied the original settlers as a boy, is engaged in prospecting in the Quatsino district.

YREKA REPORTS FAVORABLE

Between 1897 and 1902 approximately 100 claims were recorded at Clayoquot, then the nearest settlement at which there was a mining recorder's office, and a big proportion of them were situated in the Quatsino district. The recorder's office at Quatsino was established in 1903 and last year 170 mineral claims were recorded there, eighty-nine certificates of work were granted and forty-eight free miners' certificates issued. During the past Summer a number of prospectors were engaged in the locality.

Mr. Evensen and his associates gradually acquired additional claims in the locality of the Mountain King, one of which, high up on a mountain overlooking the Sound, was called the Yreka. Early in the present century a company took over the Yreka and a group of claims. A compressor was installed, an aerial tramway put in and a wharf and bunkers built. Operations were continued until 1903, when the Yreka was sold to a group of men, and then the Yreka closed down and remained idle until 1916, when another company took over the property and carried out ad-

Local exploration and development

Another tramway was built to take the place of the old one, which had fallen into disrepair, and was said to be the longest two-bucket tramway in the world at the time. A new wharf and new bunkers had to be built before ore could again be shipped, and after operating for a time the Yreka was again allowed to lapse into idleness.

In 1916 Mr. W. M. Brewer, then resident mining engineer for the district, visited the Yreka and reported that the work done had exposed a large ore body, especially important when the extremely favorable transportation facilities, by which ore could be freighted at a low cost, were considered.

Mr. Brewer considered that a quantity of 20,000 tons of ore could be shipped for shipment with a reasonable possibility that further work would expose much greater tonnage, and said that while samples showed the ore to average 3 per cent copper, a higher grade could be hand-sorted for shipment.

GOLD ON TEETER RIVER

An engineer who visited the property in 1927 reported that the mineralization consisted of veins from five to fourteen feet wide, up to 200 feet of a contact belt between limestone and limestone, and extending over 2,000 feet. This engineer said that the ore would average about 3 per cent copper and 3 ounces silver, and also referred to an occurrence of lead-zinc ore as a replacement in limestone, at 1,500 feet elevation, between the copper belt and the beach.

All traces of the last wharf, bunkers and tramway to be built at the Yreka have now disappeared. The old camp site near the shore is overgrown with trees and the trail is impassable in its present state, but it seems hardly probable that this property will be allowed to remain idle for long, once a smelter is erected somewhere within a reasonable distance of the mine.

While most of the properties in the section under review are copper propositions, in the Teeter River district, also reached from the southeast arm of Quatsino Sound, promising gold showings have been discovered.

Some years ago a company known as the Teeter River Mining Company was formed to take over a group of claims in this locality, and some $8,000 was spent in driving tunnels. The ore was complex, however, and consequently the smelters specialized in the Teeter River discoveries have removed the difficulties attending the treatment of Teeter River ore. The Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting, and Power Company had a bond on some of the Teeter River claims, but gave up their option after a certain amount of diamond drilling had been done. Later these claims reverted to the Crown, owing to the failure of the holding company to pay taxes, and George Nordstrom and associates bought in the Quatsino King, on which the most encouraging showings occurred.

A GEOLOGICAL CURIOSITY

Vein matter on the Quatsino King occurs between a white granite foot-wall and eruptive porphyry hanging wall and averages between twenty and forty feet in width, with barren spots. Bands of smaller enrichments from ten inches to two feet wide are found in the vein matter and assay as high as 5 per cent copper with $20 to $100 in gold. In the big vein assays taken by Mr. Nordstrom have averaged 1 per cent copper and $4 gold.

It is Mr. Nordstrom's intention to work out sufficient ore from the small enrichments to keep a small mill running. Of course copper concentrates would have to be shipped, but it is Mr. Nordstrom's desire to put in a small reducing plant and work on the high-grade ore, depending on the gold to make the property self-supporting, and gradually increasing the plant. A tunnel has been driven in following the hanging wall for 125 feet, and Mr. Nordstrom anticipates continuing this for a further seventy-five feet.

A property which has been described as a geological curiosity is the Millington group of claims, owned by Spencer Hogg, and associates, of Hoberg. The property is situated about three and a half miles up the valley from the settlement of Hoberg at the head of the west arm of Quatsino Sound. Early in 1928 an option was taken on the Millington group by the Consolidated, and two diamond drill holes were put in, one 430 feet deep under the old showings and one 600 feet deep under a new discovery. Neither of these holes encountered ore, and the Consolidated dropped the property.

BACK PACKING BORONITE ORE

The owners continued work this Summer and carried out open cuts which revealed a promising ore which occurs in stringers crosscutting the main vein. Prior to the construction of the road, which at present runs from tidewater to the property, two young men who then controlled claims in the district sniped out several tons of boronite ore from small veins and packed it on their backs to Hoberg, from whence it was shipped to a smelter.

A small crew of men were at work doing development work on the holdings of the Quatsino Gold Copper Mines, adjoining the Coast Copper, this Summer and a tunnel which was driven in to intersect the main vein first encountered one of the cross veins which showed good gold values in the outcrops. The geological conditions on this property are the same as on the Coast Copper, where the ore occurs in lenticular bodies within a contact belt between diorite and crystalline limestone. The two main mineralizations occur at elevations of approximately 1,000 feet and 3,000 feet, and between these two belts are smaller outcrops of pyrrhotite and arsenical iron which carry good gold values.

This is the third of a series of four articles by Mr. Hague on the mineral resources of Vancouver Island.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE PORTAL IS DEDICATED

Cairn at Gonzales and Monument at Discovery Bay Mark Story of Exploration

ANOTHER LINK WITH VANCOUVER

Cairn at Gonzales Hill

The memorial cairn establishes Gonzales Heights as an official landmark. It commemorates the search for a northwest passage in these latitudes. The cairn on the southern shore gives the names of the explorers who came to this coast in the late eighteenth century. It is directly opposite the monument unveiled on Saturday, November 2, at Discovery Bay by the Daughters of the American Revolution, commemorating the landing of Captain Vancouver in 1792.

The monument recently erected by the Daughters of the American Revolution, Michael Thebert, Chapter, Port Angeles, marking the point in Discovery Bay where Vancouver made his first landing in 1792 is directly opposite to the Gonzales Heights landmark, unveiled in 1925, and these two monuments form an international peace portal on the Strait of Juan de Fuca through which all ocean traffic must pass.

Vancouver's main mission, in 1792, was to proceed to Nootka and accept Spain's recognition of British rights at that place, well to receive recognition of British property previously confiscated by the Spaniards. When Vancouver landed at Port Discovery in 1792 he was en route to Nootka to meet the Spanish officials and complete the peaceful settlement of a grave international controversy. On his way up the coast, however, he was turned aside and entered the Strait of Juan de Fuca with the object of learning if that Strait really formed the entrance to a Northwest Passage into the Atlantic. The point marked in Discovery Bay is that from which Vancouver commenced a careful examination of the inland coast by which he proved the non-existence of any mythical Northwest Passage in these parts.

In making this examination, Vancouver discovered that Nootka was situated on a large island, and on reaching Nootka, Quadra, the Spanish representative, requested that some place should be given both their names as a memento of their friendship while representatives of two great nations engaged in carrying out a peaceful settlement of an international dispute which had nearly caused war. Vancouver promptly acceded to this request and gave the name "The Island of Quadra and Vancouver" to the land surrounding Nootka, which he had just discovered to be an island.

While Gonzales Heights landmark commemorates the search for a supposed Northwest Passage in these latitudes, and Vancouver's feat in proving the non-existence of any such imaginary passage; it also commemorates Vancouver's discovery, during the search, and his subsequent naming of "The Island of Quadra and Vancouver."

The selection of Gonzales Heights as a landmark was because it is directly opposite the point in Discovery Bay from which Vancouver began his epoch-making search and because it is also situated at the southern end of the island to which he had given his own name, coupled with that of the Spanish representative, in commemoration of their mutual friendship during the carrying out of the search for ## Ascetic Society of Anglo-Indians Is Growing Rapidly

Sermons in Five Languages Under One Roof of Toronto Church—Western School for Clergy Celebrates Jubilee—Churches Care for Sick of New Canadians

Labor Leader Welcomed Into Christian Pulpits

A CHRISTIAN brotherhood of English and East Indians living at an ashram at Poona, India, who are pledged in the service of Christ and their fellows to the vows of poverty, celibacy, obedience and the life of prayer and devotion, is attracting attention as one of the forms in which the religious spirit is taking on a congenial Indian mode of expression. Though organized but two years ago, it has twenty members and the society cannot take all the men who are offering themselves for service from the two great Universities of Oxford and Cambridge.

The members of the society, which is called the "Christa Seva Sangha," live in an "ashram," from whence they go out for service to visit the lepers, to care for the sick, to teach the poor, and to befriend students. The brothers live in small cells built round a courtyard. Except a cook and his family living near by, there are no servants. The brothers do all the work themselves. The English members try to adopt such Indian habits as are consistent with Christianity. They take renunciation and service to be the national ideals of India and they aim at living the Christian life along these lines.

Writing in The Christian World, Shoran S. Singha claims that the society is laying the foundation of is giving a lead to the Church on the race question, which he characterizes as "one of the most critical issues of the day."

UNIQUE TORONTO CHURCH

"The feverish pulsation of existence," writes Miss Whitehead in Social Welfare, of Queen Street West, Toronto, "the swarming of the Chinese, Negroes, Jews, Gypsies, and of several European nationalities, gives an unsettled character to this street. Its inhabitants change more frequently than any other part of the city. In the midst of this scrambling of living is a church," which the writer terms a "remarkable church" and "one of the unique institutions not only of Toronto but of all Canada." This religious centre, which is supported by the United Church of Canada, is the Church of All Nations, and in it Finnish and Swedish people, Norwegian, Hungarian, Ukrainian, Bulgarian and English people are at home. Denominationally they are Catholics, Reformed, Lutheran, Greek Orthodox, Jew, Free Thinker. Some are uneducated, some are educated. National services are provided in five different languages. The thought of universal peace is carefully nurtured. The so-called All Peoples' Service on Sunday evening, in which eight or ten different nationalities are represented, binds them together as one of God's families.

CANADIAN CHURCH NEWS

Characterized by The Presbyterian Record as "one of the most brilliant of the younger men of the Church of Scotland," Rev. A. F. Scott Pearson, M.A., Th.D., comes to the chair of Church History in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, after a distinguished career in Scottish and Continental universities and renowned as scholar, preacher and author. His two books on Thomas Cartwright and, more recently, on Church and State are regarded as standard works.

Once each week in some part of uncharted Canada, a home mission was opened; is the statement of the year book of the United Church. The total number of fields receiving missionary aid is 1,508. Attention is called to the steady substitution of non-Anglo-Saxon for English-speaking rural population in older portions of southern Manitoba. To meet this situation this Church has been sending out teams of college students, one Ukrainian and one Anglo-Saxon, to work among the present population, largely of European origin.

A form of service which is being undertaken by several of the churches arises from the need of hospital and nursing care among the newcomers. A number of church centres have a medical and nursing staff and a smaller or larger hospital, which minister to an extended area, in this way practicing practical Christianity and true neighborliness. This tends to remove the barriers of prejudice and suspicion, it is stated, which seem naturally to take form between those of different race and speech.

Only one of its three Arctic missionary graduates was present at the recent jubilee of Emmanuel Anglican College, Saskatoon. The other two reported that they were "in for the winter." Fifty-three graduates were in attendance. Canon Head, the Archbishop-elect of Melbourne, Australia, was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity as representing the Colonial and Continental Church Society of England, which has generously supported this training school of Anglican clergy.

The American labor leader, Mr. William Green, spoke recently in the Yorkminster Baptist Church, Toronto. Last year he preached at the invitation of Bishop Manning in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. At Yorkminster Mr. Green, who is a convinced Baptist, declared that the teachings of Jesus must be the basis of social and industrial adjustment.

If Mr. Baldwin Retires

E X-PREMIER Baldwin feels that no useful purpose would be served by calling a full party meeting to discuss the causes of the Conservative party's defeat in the recent elections in Great Britain, and he is expected to continue as party leader for at least the time being. Mr. Neville Chamberlain, left, has been suggested as his logical successor, but he is said to be too aloof toward private members. Colonel Amery, centre, is said to aspire to the leadership, but has a very small following. Mr. Winston Churchill's (right) claims have been urged, but it is feared that his elevation might cause a split in the party.

ATWATER KENT LOWERS PRICES

SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTIONS ARE MADE ON SCREEN GRID RADIO SETS

Largest Radio Manufacturing Plant in World Has Approximately Doubled in Size

Public participation in the savings made possible by large-scale operations and modern manufacturing efficiency is emphasized in the announcement by A. Atwater Kent, the world's largest manufacturer of radio receiving equipment, of substantial reductions in the prices of all Atwater Kent screen grid radio sets.

"Stabilizing the public dollar for the prosperity of the country," is the way Mr. Kent describes his action in sharing the savings of his increased facilities with the buying public.

"For the past seven months," says Mr. Kent, "we have been making screen grid radio in the largest and most efficient radio factory in the world. Concentration on this one job, the production of the finest radio that can be built, enables us again to share with the public the savings of our large-scale operations."

The Atwater Kent factory in Philadelphia, already the largest radio manufacturing plant in the world, was approximately doubled in size last spring by the completion of a new 16 1-2 acre addition. No plant of its magnitude in the country is more favorably situated for efficient, economical production or to share its economies with its customers. The company owns its business and immense plant outright, has done business on its own capital for 27 years without borrowing a dollar, and today is in the strongest position it has ever held. Radio Sales Service, Ltd., Vancouver and Victoria, are the British Columbia distributors for Atwater Kent radio.

Rescued Party Acknowledges His Honor's Wire

Following the dispatch of a message from the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. R. Randolph Bruce, conveying to Colonel C. H. D. McAlpine and his party in the Far North congratulations upon their safety and early relief, a reply has come from Bathurst Inlet.

MR. R. J. C. SMITH IS NEW MANAGER

Well-Known Sportsman Now in Charge of Established Business

At the first of the month Mr. R. J. C. Smith, popularly known as "Bob," took up his new position as general manager of Plimley & Ritchie Ltd., the well-known Victoria sporting goods and bicycle store, 611 View Street, in the Arcade Block.

Mr. Smith joined the firm in 1920, on the invitation of Mr. W. M. Ritchie, so well and favorably known to Victorians. For eight years Mr. Smith has occupied the position of secretary-treasurer, ably filling every demand made upon him in that capacity. It was due to his entry that a line of sporting goods and fishing tackle was added to a business which had previously endeavored to specialize in bicycles and bicycle repairs. Radio was added in 1928, and forms a large and growing portion of the business. Radiola and Westinghouse radios are carried.

"Bob" was born and educated in Winnipeg, where his father was one of the early pioneers. He arrived in Victoria as a youth, twenty-one years ago. Here he has resided, except for three years service overseas during the war. Always prominent in sporting circles, "Bob" carried off the indoor athletic championship of the Winnipeg Y.M.C.A. at the early age of sixteen. Since then he has been connected with both football and basketball in Victoria, playing guard on the Congo, Congonien, and Garry basketball teams. A member of the Victoria Gyro Club, Mr. Smith is also a director of the Victoria Y.M.C.A. and president of the Metropolitan Tennis Club.

Plimley & Ritchie Ltd. are known all over the province as high-grade purveyors of Massey and C.C.M. bicycles, motorcycles and bicycle accessories. In addition to these a number of imported English lines are carried, in particular the well-known Humber bicycle. The office of the Victoria Arena Co. Ltd., is here, from which tickets for the professional ice hockey games are sold.

To Attend Sales Manager's Meeting

Mr. Ben Crossman, sales manager for Jameson Motors Ltd., left today on the Dorothy Alexander for San Francisco and Los Angeles, where he will attend a series of meetings to be given by the Studebaker Corporation for Studebaker sales managers. These meetings are being held to promote a better understanding among the managers of the requirements demanded by the automobile buying public. Mr. Crossman will be away for two weeks.

He—Well, dear, I've got it all done in nice time. I've got the tickets, two good seats, and all the luggage in. She—Well, get it all out at once, George. We can't possibly go. There's a woman on the train with exactly the same hat as mine. —From London Opinion.

Winter Rabbit Show Set for January 20 to 22

The British Columbia Provincial Rabbit Breeders' Association will hold its sixth annual Winter show at the Willows January 20 to 22.

The City Challenge Cup, Scott & Feden Challenge Cup, Totem Challenge Cup, Rennie & Taylor Challenge Cup, Beswade Rabbitry Challenge Cup and the Wenger Challenge Cup will all be on hand for competition and, vigorously defended by last year's winners, in addition to which a large list of special cups and prizes is being prepared. In this connection last year's donors of special are heartily thanked and invited to give the same generous assistance this year.

On account of a possible misunderstanding on this point, the executive wishes to make it clear that no person is authorized to solicit prizes for this show unless bearing credentials on the letterhead of the association, signed by the secretary, Mr. W. G. Bird, 566 Gorge Road, West.

CAPTURED BY BANDITS

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9.—The Rev. Ulrich Kreutzen, of Calumet, Mich., a Franciscan missionary stationed at Wuchang, Hupeh Province, today was taken captive by bandits at a point seventy-five miles southeast of Wu-tang, and held for a ransom of $10,000 Mexican, which his mission was asked to pay.

"How did you get on the matrimonial lottery?" "I drew a blank, but my wife drew a winner."

Canadian Artists to Be Heard Next Week

Hailed by Toronto's leading musical critics after their appearance in the Ontario capital, November 3, as entertainers of the first order, Stanley Maxted, Montreal's celebrated tenor, and Miss Mary Frances

James will be heard at the Empress Hotel, Victoria, on Wednesday evening in the second of the series of six Canadian and British concerts. Sponsored across the Dominion by the Canadian Pacific Railway they have received unstinting praise from Toronto musical reviewers.

The Toronto Mail and Empire lauds Stanley Maxted as the possessor of "a singularly attractive tenor voice and charming personality" while this newspaper refers to the singing of Miss James as "notably pure and finished. The musical settings, says the Mail, were as logical as if written by Miss herself, while Miss Williams, accompanist, 'did wonders with the score.'"

Dr. Mason, reviewer for the Toronto Globe, credits Maxted with a fine tone, clear-cut enunciation, and sympathetic interpretations which were most admirable. "Miss James' voice added much to the sensuous beauty of the sound," says Dr. Mason.

Maxted's beautiful voice provided a happy hour and Miss James' songs were marked by grace of phrase and purity of tone, declares the Toronto Telegram in tribute to the artists.
